THE PRESIDENT KEPT ON JUMP

Taft Has a Strenuous Day in Chicago.

Given Welcome by 200,000 School Children.

This Afternoon Is Taken to the Art Institute—Then Goes to the Ball Game—Tonight Is To Attend a Ball Which Is To Be the Swellest Since That Given in Chicago to Prince Henry.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—This is President Taft's big day. From the minute he arrived here a few minutes after 11 o'clock this morning he found himself the center of activities that kept him sufficiently on the jump to entitle him to a place beside President Roosevelt for strenuosity.

It is estimated that half a million persons, nearly half of them children, greeted the president during this morning's automobile parade, the big spectacular feature of the president's day here.

The president's special train reached the Fifty-Fifth Street station shortly before noon, and was met by a reception committee representing the Commercial club of Chicago. No time was lost in starting the festivities. The president and his party were escorted in automobiles, and the parade was begun.

One hundred and fifty machines made up the parade, the president accompanied by Captain Archibald Butt and two secret service men occupying the first automobile. Secretary of War Dickinson also occupied an automobile.

Welcomed by Children.

The route took the party through Washington park on the South Side, which was filled with 200,000 school children of the city. As the president's automobile approached the children welcomed the chief executive by shouting in unison "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." Simultaneously, five brass bands and four bugle corps began to play, increasing the din. Then, as the president drove by, bowing and smiling his broadest smile to the little ones, 200,000 childish voices joined in singing "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," and the demonstration—one of the most remarkable in the city's history—evidently impressed the chief executive deeply. The school children had been carefully drilled for the occasion, and the massing of such an enormous crowd in the parks was accomplished without misshap.

The only woman in the reception committee that greeted the president was Mrs. Eliza Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago schools. The president congratulated her on her rise to the superintendency. Then, when he looked out over the sea of childish faces that waited to greet him, the president turned to Mrs. Young and smilingly asked: "And are all of these 200,000 yours?" Mrs. Young said they were.

The demonstration which began with the approach of the president's automobile, continued while the remainder of the machines in the parade sped by. Then the machines swept around down town and brought up at the Congress hotel, where the chief executive lunched and took a brief rest in preparation for the remainder of the day's strenuous proceedings.

Afternoon Program.

In the afternoon the president was taken to the Art institute, where the Commercial club relinquished control of his movements as their guest and formally turned him over to the Hamilton club.

The Hamiltonians at once put the president through another round of activities. He was hurried to an automobile and, followed by 4,000 members of the Hamilton club, delegates to the bankers' convention and prominent Chicago citizens, was hurried to the West Side ball park.

There he laid aside the cares of state temporarily to occupy a seat in the grandstand and prove that he is a real "fan."

The most distinguished gathering that ever witnessed a baseball game in this country was in the grandstand this afternoon. Besides the president, whose presence alone would make the occasion momentous, fans and fannesses from all over the country were present.

So many delegates to the bankers' convention attended that when the umpire stepped in front of the grandstand and, doffing his cap, shrieked "Batteries for today," etc., nearly a billion dollars in wealth was represented in the stands.

Promised Good Game.

The Chicago club still considers itself a contender in the National league pennant race and both Managers Chance of Chicago, and McGraw of New York this morning promised that the president would witness "the game of his life." The president told the Hamilton club committee last week that whatever else was left off his program for today, he must see the ball game.

Elaborate preparations were made at the ball park for the president, several grandstand seats having been taken out to make room for a

FACES CHARGE OF ABDUCTION

Williamsburg, Kansas, Pastor Elopes with Young Girl.

Sixteen-Year-Old Clara Lourraine Takes Active Part in Church Work and Sings in the Choir. In Love with Wallace M. Stuckey.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Authorities from Williamsburg, Kansas, are enroute to Waukegan to get Rev. Wallace M. Stuckey, of Williamsburg, charged with abduction, who disappeared from there in July, a few days before Miss Clara Lourraine Sutherland, sixteen, also vanished. The girl is the daughter of a wealthy farmer near Williamsburg.

Stuckey was arrested yesterday in Waukegan by Sheriff Griffin at a private residence, where, it is charged, he and the girl were living as father and daughter. It is said Miss Sutherland confessed she and the minister had eloped.

Stuckey was editor of the Williamsburg Star and pastor of the Christian church there. Miss Sutherland was active in church work, and sang in the choir.

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS

Have President Taft and Cannon Reached It?

THAT'S QUESTION OF BIG INTEREST

Which Official Washington Is Asking at Present.

The Views on the Currency Question Expressed by the President and the Speaker of the House the Same Day Are So Radically Opposed That the Question Has Naturally Been Forced.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Have President Taft and Speaker Cannon come to the parting of the ways?

The answer will doubtless be read in the president's forthcoming speeches during his "swing around the circle."

In the opinion of many folks here in Washington, the seed of discord has already been sown, but it remains to be seen whether it will bear fruit.

Heretofore the president and the speaker have been on the best of terms. Cannon has been a welcome visitor at the White House, and his advice and counsel have been sought by the president on many public questions. Until now, there have been no serious differences of opinion between them. Wherefore, the opposing views expressed by each in their recent speeches on the currency question—Taft in his address at the Boston banquet, and Cannon before the American Bankers' association on the same day—came as somewhat of a shock to official Washington. Almost at the same time, the president was criticising our present currency system as a piece of patchwork and declaring his friendliness toward the central-bank idea, Cannon was expressing "stand pat" ideas on the subject, and giving his approval of the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill of the last session.

Curiosity Aroused.

There is much curiosity, therefore, as to the president's future course. That he will take occasion during his trip to elaborate on the ideas he expressed in Boston, is fully expected. It is hardly likely he will answer Cannon directly, but those who are familiar with the president's set purpose to accomplish a substantial, and, if possible, a permanent reform in the currency system of the country during the present administration, believe he will go into the subject much more thoroughly before his return to Washington.

A conflict between the speaker and the president on a matter considered by the president to be of so much importance to the welfare of the country could scarcely prove otherwise than embarrassing to the administration, as well as the party, which both represent.

According to present indications, the monetary commission will not be ready to make its final report when congress opens in December. A preliminary report commending certain minor changes in the banking laws is expected, and there will doubtless be some legislation on the subject. There will also be a lot of general discussion of the whole problem, but as matters stand now it is not believed the commission will be ready to report a general bill till next spring.

In that event, the matter will probably go over for a special session to be called in the fall of 1910.

PEARY CONCLUDES TO ACCEPT BID

For Public Testimonial To Be Given by Portland.

Portland, Me., Sept. 16.—Commander Peary, possibly piqued by learning of the elaborate preparations being made to receive Dr. Cook on his arrival in New York on Tuesday next, has now reconsidered his refusal made in a telegram received here a day or two ago to accept a public testimonial, and stop off here on his way to New York. Today the city officials were in receipt of the following message dated Battle Harbor, Labrador:

"Referring to previous message. Am now in position to accept invitation should such be given Peary.

An invitation awaits the commander at Sydney and it seems probable Portland will have an opportunity to entertain the distinguished explorer.

SWAMPED BY AN IMMENSE WAVE

Lifeboat Sinks Beneath Surface of the Waters.

FIVE WOMEN AND SIX MEN DROWNED

Four Lifeboats Missing for a Time Cause Alarm.

Steamer Umbilli Goes into the Rocks Off Cape Point—Gets Out of Her Course and Hits Rocks in Such a Manner That It Is Plain That She Will Soon Become a Total Wreck.

Capetown, S. A., Sept. 16.—Five women and six men, passengers on the South African Steamship company's steamer Umbilli, were drowned while an attempt was being made to land them after the steamer went on the rocks off Cape Point today. Four boatloads of passengers were missing in the fog for several hours, and for a time it was feared that they had been lost.

The steamer go out of her course in the fog and struck on the rocks in such a manner that it was plain she must soon become a total wreck. Her captain gave orders to land the passengers in the lifeboats. Four got away all right, but the fifth was swamped by an immense wave and the eleven passengers that were in it, not having life belts, sank before aid could reach them.

SUGGESTS RUNNING WATER FOR PURPOSE

Red Haws and Ice-Cream in Combination

They Prove Bad for a Delaware County Boy—Cause Him To Lose Consciousness — Engineers Are Sightseeing in Columbus Today. Ball Player Is Fatally Shocked at Buckeye Lake.

Columbus, O., Sept. 16.—Dr. C. O. Probst, secretary of the state board of health, has decreed that the rinsing tub must go from the saloons of Ohio. He contends that the washing of glasses in which particles of foam still cling in a tub, where they are shaken around two or three times and set up as clean, is not only as injurious to health as any other form of public drinking nuisance, but it also goes against all ethics of decency and cleanliness. He will urge the substitution of running founts for the individual washing of glasses.

Delaware Lad's Narrow Escape.

Delaware, O., Sept. 16.—Lawrence Doland, 10, ate a quantity of redhaws and later came to town with his father and ate three dishes of ice cream. In a short time he was in a doctor's office unconscious, and was saved only after strenuous efforts by the physician.

WYMAN WATCHES THE PELLAGRA

Issues Bulletins on Spread of New and Deady Disease.

Washington, Sept. 16. -- So wide spread has interest in the strange malady, pellagra, become among medical authorities and others throughout the country, that Surgeon General Wyman of the public health and marine hospital service has added a weekly bulletin dealing exclusively with the development of that disease. This step has been decided upon as a result of requests from practically all of the state boards of health, who are watching the progress of the disease, particularly in the south, with much concern.

Dr. Wyman was greatly interested to learn of the action of the Tennessee state board of health in quarantining against the disease, it being held that the malady is communicable. While declining to go on record that pellagra is not communicable, Surgeon General Wyman declared that he observed nothing in the disease to show that it is a contagious one. The consensus of opinion among the medical authorities in Italy, where the disease has existed for a long time, Dr. Wyman stated, is that it is noncontagious.

FIRE THREATENS TOWN OF NILES

Fortunately the Monetary Loss Is Very Small.

FIFTEEN HEAD OF HORSES BURNED

Town Is Utterly Without a Fire Department.

The Decreased Revenues as a Result of the Voting Out of the Saloons Result in the Letting Out of the Fire Department — Volunteers Fight Blaze Till 5 O'Clock This Morning.

Niles, O., Sept. 16.—The business section of Niles was threatened with destruction shortly after midnight this morning when fire starting from an unknown origin in the stable of John Freck spread to two adjoining stables, the opera-house and the Allison hotel. The damage was estimated at $15,000 and Fire Chief A. I. Orr is today investigating.

The threatening aspect was occasioned by the fact that since August the city has been without a fire department. This was brought about by the action of the board of public safety which discharged the members of the department when the apportioned funds for the maintenance of the police and fire departments gave out because of the loss of revenue sustained when through a local-option election the city was voted dry.

Following the election the board of public safety endeavored to raise funds to maintain the departments by a bond issue of $6,000, but this was defeated through the efforts of the liquor forces.

It was 5 a. m. before the volunteers had the fire under control.

Fifteen horses were burned in the John Freck and the Clark & Evans stables. Those in the Halloway & Son stables were saved. The opera-house and the Allison hotel were not greatly damaged.

COOK DID REACH THE NORTH POLE

Not the First To Announce Fact to World.

HIS SUCCESS TOLD BY ESKIMOS FIRST

Long Before the Doctor Makes His Announcement.

Young Danish Girl in This Country Gets Letters from Eskimo Friends Telling of the Success of the Brooklyn Physician in Reaching the Top of the World—Ample Proofs of His Success.

New York, Sept. 16.—Strong evidence that the Eskimos of the polar region believe Dr. Cook did reach the North pole at the time he says he did, was given out Wednesday afternoon by Miss Gerda Sebbelov, a young Danish girl, who is taking a course of anthropology, psychology and English at Columbia university, with the ultimate idea of teaching in Greenland.

Miss Sebbelov was formerly tutor in the family of Konrad Dugge, factor in a Danish trading post at Uppernavik. She spent three years among the Eskimos, traveling from post to post with her employers. She became well acquainted with the Eskimos, nursing their sick and teaching them.

"I have received letters from those of my Eskimo friends who know how to write, in which they speak of Dr. Cook having reached the pole. These letters were written and received by me long before Dr. Cook himself made the announcement. The Eskimos write me that Dr. Cook did reach the pole at the time he says he did. News among the Eskimos travel fast, and if Dr. Cook had not reached the pole, my friends would never have written me that he did. Please remember these letters were written by my Eskimo freinds a long while before Dr. Cook himself got to the outside world. They gave me details of the trip that Dr. Cook himself has not given. These Eskimos would know as well as any white man if Cook had gotten to the pole.

Cook Has Proofs.

"But I have heard that Dr. Cook is not sufficiently well versed in scientific knowledge to prove to the scientific world that his story is true.

"From Denmark some of my friends have written me that Dr. Cook did show his data to our scientific men, and they have declared without qualification that he got to the pole. This would contradict all the stories that Dr. Cook had not shown his records, but my friends say he did.

"Commander Peary was unsportsmanlike in declaring Dr. Cook was an imposter. He says these Eskimos declare Cook did not reach the pole. My Eskimo friends say he did. If Peary doubted Cook's claims, he should have notified the scientific societies, and not the world at large."

Miss Sebbelov, who has been nicknamed "Niviarsiak," or "Red Lady" by the Eskimos, refused to make public the letters she had received, declaring they were written to her in confidence, and she did not care to make them public. She does not know, she declares, either Dr. Cook or Peary, and has no interest whatever in their controversy.

FRANCE LITERALLY TEEMS WITH SPIES

According to the Statement of General Durand.

Paris, Sept. 16.—Overrun with spies from other lands, not to mention traitors in her own military ranks, France has just issued orders for the strictest watch to be exercised over the secrets of her fortifications, army and navy equipment and even her own troops. Minister Briand has emphasized to General Brun, the minister of war, the necessity of a counter-espionage.

General Durand, one of the foremost French officers, declares that at no time since the days just preceding the Franco-Prussian war, have there been so many spies in France. He says the country is literally teeming with them, and that they are getting assistance from the soldiers themselves. The situation is such that army officers no longer conceal their gravest apprehension.

PEARY DENIES REPORT HE POSTED COOK DEAD

Unfurls Collection of Flags at the Pole.

REMNANT OF ONE MADE BY HIS WIFE

It Is Surrounded by Pennants of the Navy and the Navy League, the Flag of Peace, Flag of New York Yacht Club and Emblem of His College Fraternity.

St. Johns, N. F., Sept 16.—A message received here Wednesday afternoon from Battle Harbor declares that Commander Peary has denied the report current in Denmark, that he had posted notices along the coast of Greenland that Dr. Cook was dead; using these notices as a pretext for commandeering Dr. Cook's supplies. He added that he would have nothing more to say at this time regarding Dr. Cook's claims.

Peary said the flag which he unfurled at the pole was the one his wife made for him fifteen years ago, and which he had carried on all his Arctic trips in the hope that some day he might unfurl it at the top of the world.

The flag was a torn one. Every time he went to the pole he tore a piece from it and left it at the point furthest north that he reached on that particular trip. The remnant of the flag he left at the North pole. In addition to that, he raised his navy pennant, the pennant of the Navy league, the flag of peace, the emblem of the Greek letter fraternity, Delta Epsilon, to which he belonged in college, and the flag of the New York Yacht club, under whose colors the Roosevelt sailed. He used tent poles at flagstaffs, and took a photograph of the whole group at the North pole. These photographic films have not been developed.

While at the pole, Peary says he enclosed a record of his trip and other data in an air and watertight tin box and buried it in the ice. This box, he declares, would float if it ever reached open water. He declined to say whether he found a drifting currant at the pole.

THEY WANTED HOME IN WHICH TO GREET FRIENDS

Before Announcing the Fact of Their Marriage.

THUS BRIDEGROOM EXPLAINS SECRECY

Mr. Harry S. Elliott and Miss Dorothy G. Glimpse Are Married at Wheaton, Illinois, July 6—Bridegroom Is Given Ride About Town in a Dray.

City Auditor Harry S. Elliott stole a march on his relatives and friends, Tuesday, July 6, when he married Miss Dorothy G. Glimpse, of this city, at Wheaton, Illinois, but his friends turned the tables on him, Tuesday night, when they tore him from his bride and rode him around town on a dray.

For weeks it had been rumored that the young city official and Miss Glimpse had been married in or near Chicago, but the bride and bridegroom stoutly denied it. Not even their relatives were let into the secret until a day or so ago.

Tuesday, it was learned that Mr. Elliott and his bride expected to stay all night at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. W. Curtis, of McWilliams court. Members of the Tally Wag club, the Elks and Canby Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias, to which organizations Mr. Elliott belongs, decided to surprise him and they caught him, to use his own language, "dead to rights."

The marriage is the culmination of a romance that began when Mr. Elliott was a reporter for a local newspaper and Miss Glimpse was a stenographer in the office of Justice Charley H. Conley. They saw much of each other, because the reporter's instinct for news brought him in frequent contact with the justice's office. Cupid was not asleep at the switch either and his train of affection darts went straight to the heart.

When Miss Glimpse resigned her position here and went to Chicago, where she became a stenographer in the offices of the Continental Chaoutchouie company, Mr. Elliott made a number of secret trips to the Windy City. The last time he went he claimed his sweetheart as his bride. On the morning of July 6, he boarded a trolley car in Chicago and went to Wheaton, where he procured a license. That afternoon he returned for his bride. Rev. Mr. Heerbouth, a Lutheran minister, performed the ceremony. Shortly afterward, the happy bridegroom returned to Marion. His bride followed a few days later She shyly told her friends that she did not know whether she would return to Chicago.

The popular young people did not want the cruel world to know that they were married until they went into their own cozy home. "We had no other object in view, believe me," said the smiling bridegroom, Wednesday, "other than to go to housekeeping first before letting our friends know. We never had a romantic thought, that's honest."

HALLEY'S COMET BACK ON ITS SCHEDULE TIME

Celestial Visitor Comes Every Seventy-Four Years.

VISIBLE TO NAKED EYE NEXT SPRING

At Present It Can Not Be Seen Save by the Use of the Largest Telescopes—It Has Come at Regular Periods for the Last 2,250 Years. An Interesting Sketch.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 16.—Halley's comet, traditional since 250 years before the Christian era, as the forerunner of evil times for the lower classes, has been sighted again after seventy-four years' absence from the immediate ken of astronomers.

A dispatch received Sunday at Harvard university observatory from Professor Wolff, of Heidelberg, bears the news that he discovered the comet Saturday—5,642 in right ascension, six hours, eighteen minutes, twelve seconds; destination seventeen degrees eleven minutes north.

From Professor Wolff's reported discovery American astronomers are inclined to believe that all the large observatories of the world presently will be able to locate the comet with their telescopes. Professor Wolff says only the largest telescope at his command revealed the comet.

Recorded 2,250 Years Ago.

Astronomical authorities agree that even if the observatory telescopes reveal the comet distinctly, it will not be visible to the naked eye until next April or May. The layman who wishes to observe the phenomenon before that time will have to go to Yerkes or Lick observatory in America or to those of Heidelberg, Paris, Pulkowa or Greenwich in Europe. Next spring, however, those who get up at sunrise ought to be able to see it in its glory.

The discovery of the comet at this time records another beat of that celestial pendulum which swings once every seventy-four years.

Halley's comet was last seen in 1835. It was, perhaps, first seen by an astronomer competent to record it 2,250 years ago, or 250 years before the Christian era. That is the farthest date to which the patient labors of the astronomers have carried it back, and it was then seen and noted by the Chinese astronomers, who saw it again in the August of B. C. 87.

Period Computed in 1682.

Halley's comet is of interest as being the first to be recognized as a periodic visitor to the neighborhood of the sun. Newton's friend Halley, while studying the great comet of 1682, was struck by its resemblance in every respect to that of 1607, and also to the one in 1531. He came to the conclusion that these were three visitations of the same comet. This belief was strengthened by a study of comet records, which revealed the fact that from as early as 1066 A. D. every seventy-five years or thereabout a great comet had been reported. This led Halley to predict that the comet would appear again early in the fall of 1758.

Interest in Reappearance.

But Halley did not live to see the fulfillment of his prophecy. In 1742 he died, leaving the rules and formula by which the exact date of the comet's return could be foretold and modestly requesting that if his prediction should come true the world would remember that the credit belonged to England.

As the time for the reappearance of the comet approached great excitement was manifested throughout the scientific world. If it should arrive on schedule time it would clear up the mystery of these objects which always had been the terror of humanity at large and the puzzle of astronomers because of their seeming disregard of the laws governing the movements of our family of planets.

Explained Its Delay.

In August of the appointed year all eyes were trained on the heavens searching for the now famous comet, but the month passed without its discovery; then September and October, and still no comet.

People began to believe that Halley had been deceived and that the previous succession of comets had been but another evidence of the freakish behavior of these queer celestial bodies.

Early in November, Clairaut, a young mathematician, published an explanation of the trouble He showed that the non-appearance was due to no fault of the comet. The course of the comet lay quite near the planet Saturn and also the planet Jupiter, both of which had retarded it considerably, so that it was many months behind schedule.

Six Months on Formulae.

Working with Clairaut were two persons, one of them a woman, who undertook the stupendous mathematical task of figuring out Clairaut's complex formulae. For six months they labored ceaselessly, and immediately following Clairaut's announcement they fixed upon the middle of April, 1759, as the time when the comet would make its nearest approach to the sun.

But when giving out this date they stated that, being pressed for time, certain small values had been ignored in their calculations, and that these omissions might make a difference of a month one way or the other, in the actual result.

On Christmas day, 1758, an amateur astronomer in Germany observed a slight hazy patch in the sky, which turned out to be the long-delayed comet. Needless to say, its discovery was hailed as one of the greatest events in the history of astronomy.

Within Three Days of Time.

A careful watch now was kept on it to find just when it would make its closest approach to the sun. True to the predictions, March 12, 1759, within a month of the appointed time, the sun was rounded and the comet started on its journey to the remotest confines of our solar system.

The next return of Halley's comet was set for November 16, 1835, and sure enough, within three days of the appointed time it paid its compliment to the sun and hurried off again to the dark and frigid outposts where the lonely planet Neptune treads its solitary beat.

From that time until the present its whereabouts have been a matter of more or less accurate conjecture on the part of the astronomers who were guided by Clairaut's formulae.

THE PRESIDENT KEPT ON JUMP

big chair for him. The president's expressed preference for a "true fan's seat in the grand stand back of first base" has been respected.

After the baseball game, the president and his party will return to the Congress hotel, where the president will dine informally, as the guest of the Hamilton club at 7 p. m. At 8 o'clock the party will adjourn to Orchestra hall, and the president will deliver a "keynote" speech.

First Public Effort.

Mayor Fred A. Busse, who will introduce the president, will signalize the event by delivering the first public speech of his political career.

At 11 p. m. the president will be hurried back to the Congress hotel, where he is expected to attend the grand ball of the American Bankers' association.

This ball will be the most elaborate and exclusively society function held in Chicago since the famous ball given in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia ten years ago. Only 200 persons outside of the members of the Bankers' association, have been invited, and the arrangements committee has announced that these 200 will constitute "the cream of Chicago society."

The president will leave the ball room at midnight and will be escorted to his special train, which will leave by the Nortwestern railroad at 2:30 a. m. for Madison, Wisconsin, the president's first stop for tomorrow.

Edward S. O'Reilly, the "cowboy courier," arrived in Chicago today from San Antonio. He is the bearer of an invitation to the president from San Antonia and other southern Texas cities to partake of the hospitalities of Texas. O'Reilly has made the trip from Texas on a broncho. He will present his invitation to President Taft tonight.

The Same Engineer.

Toledo, O., Sept. 16.—When the Taft special pulled out of Toledo for Elkhart, this morning, James Lennon, the same engineer who fifteen years ago was one of the victims of Judge Taft's famous injunction issued against railroad men, was at the throttle.

Lennon, at the time of the Ann Arbor strike, was working for the Lake Shore. He disregarded Judge Taft's order requiring all connecting companies and their employes to handle Ann Arbor cars without discrimination, by refusing to pull a string of Ann Arbor cars. He was found guilty of contempt of court and fined $50.

Whatever bitter feeling Lennon held for Taft has evidently been lost, as last fall Lennon delivered numerous speeches in favor of Taft. Lennon is one of the best known railroad men in Toledo.

SPECIAL SERVICES OF THE MARION HEBREWS

Congregation of Israel Observes New Year.

THE "BOOK OF LIFE" OPENED ON THIS DAY

Every Inhabitant of the Earth Is Judged for Deeds Done During the Past Year—Book Is Not Sealed for Ten Days—Truly Penitent Can Secure a Change.

Thursday marked the first day of the year 5,670 in the Jewish calendar and the event was appropriately celebrated by Marion Hebrews. Services were held at the Congregation of Israel in the Masonic temple, Wednesday evening and Thursday.

"Rosh Ha Shonoh" began at sundown, Wednesday, and ended with Thursday's sun.

According to orthodox belief, the Almighty opens the "Book of Life" on this day and inscribed in it His judgment of every inhabitant of the earth according to his or her conduct during the past year. It is believed that this judgment decides whether life or death, fortune or misfortune, shall be the lot of each one during the coming year. The book was closed at night, but is left unsealed for ten days, called the "Ten Days of Penitence," which end on "Yom Kippur," Day of Atonement. The orthodox believe that God will forgive the truly penitent and change a bad judgment into a good one for them before sealing the book at sundown on "Yom Kippur."

New Year's cards bearing the words "L'Shono Tovo Tickosov," meaning "may you be inscribed for a good year," were sent and received. The new year is an embolismic imperfect year of 383 days. Last year was an ordinary perfect year of 355 days.

A marriage license has been issued to Miss Cora May Selter and David B. Neidhardt.

A marriage license has been issued to Miss Della Blanche Foos, of LaRue, and Charles D. Rhoades.

SEEK TO MANDAMUS THE COUNTY AUDITOR

A Development in the Road-Roller Controversy.

AUDITOR REFUSES A CERTIFICATE

Maintains the Purchase of Roller Is Not Within the Law and Will Not Certify That There Is Money in Treasury for Purchase—A Fight in the Courts Is Promised.

The county commissioners, Wednesday afternoon, adopted a resolution directing Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice to bring mandamus proceedings against County Auditor Charles L. Allen as a result of the latter's refusal to certify that there is money in the treasury to pay for a road-roller bought several months ago for $2,800 from the Austin-Western company, of Columbus.

Auditor Allen declares he will not make the certification demanded by the commissioners until the supreme court has directed him to do so.

"I have never officially given anything out for publication regarding this matter," said Mr. Allen, "but you may say that I will not recede from my position unless the supreme court of Ohio says I am wrong."

The road-roller proposition has long been a bone of bitter contention between the commissioners and the county auditor. The controversy between them has become familiar to the people because of the publication of charges and countercharges.

The auditor steadfastly maintains that the roller's purchase was irregular and not according to law. No amount of persuasion has convinced him otherwise. He has acted on the advice of personal counsel and believes the courts will sanction his stand. On the other hand, the commissioners believe that they are right and are willing, after many weeks of delay, to leave the courts determine the question.

Miss Pearle Garfield, clerk of the board of commissioners, Thursday declined to say whether or not the commissioners had adopted a resolution directing the prosecutor to proceed against the auditor. "You will have to see the commissioners," she said. The commissioners were out of town, viewing a ditch.

The commissioners' journal does not show the proceedings of Wednesday's meeting, as they have not yet been officially recorded by Clerk Garfield. It is learned from an absolutely reliable source, however, that the resolution was passed with Commissioners W. H. Holverstott and Joseph Gillespie voting for it and Commissioner Daniel Selter not voting.

Acting on the direction of the commissioners, Prosecuting Attorney Justice, Thursday, filed a petition, in which it is asked that an alternate mandamus may be issued against County Auditor Allen commanding him to certify that the amount of $2,800 is in the county treasury to the credit of the pike fund.

It is also asked that the costs incurred in the action be taxed against the county auditor.

In the suit of the United States Fidelity & Guaranty company against Wallace McBride and others, the Home Building & Loan company, through Attorneys Copeland & Bartram, has filed an answer and cross-petition, asking that its mortgage of $600 be made a first lien on the property.

Judge Daniel Babst has granted Receivers George Whysall, and Ell M. West, of the Columbus, Marion & Bucyrus Railway company, authority to borrow $2,000 for a period of six months at six per cent. to make improvements. In their petition filed in the common pleas court to borrow the sum granted, the receivers stipulated that $800 would be spent for new rails and $1,200 for permanent culverts.

The petit jury, which was to have reported, September 20, will not now report until October 4, on account of the grand jury adjourning until September 20.

AT AN EARLY HOUR TUESDAY EVENING

Brown, in the presence of only a few of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. Following the simple ring service, a short social season was enjoyed at the bride's home.

The groom is the youngest son of Mrs. Maria Smiley, of east Church street. EMBEZZLEMENT IS THE CHARGE AGAINST YOUTH

Made to the Authorities by the Lad's Father.

WHO SWEARS OUT WARRANT FOR SON

David Temple, Aged Eighteen, Is Accused by Sylvester Temple of Converting to His Own Use the Money Received by Lad for a Load of Oats—News of Police Court.

David Temple, aged eighteen years, was arrested in the West End Wednesday by Officer Cusic on a warrant charging him with embezzlement. The affidavit for the warrant was sworn to by Sylvester Temple, the father of the boy. About two weeks ago the boy went to the home of his father, on the Green Camp pike, to help thresh oats.

Temple was hauling the oats to the elevator at Green Camp as they were being threshed out. The boy took one load to the elevator, and represented that the oats belonged to him and asked for the money. He collected $72.19, and on returning home handed his father the slip which had been given him at the elevator showing the weight of the load. The father put the slip with some others without looking at it, but when he went to collect his money he discovered that the cash had been paid for one of the loads. The boy left home on the following day and later the father appeared at the mayor's office and filed the affidavit against his son.

Frank Leeper, charged with disturbing the peace, in an affidavit filed against him by Addie Wetzler, and who pleaded not guilty before the mayor, Monday, was given a hearing in the mayor's court, Wednesday evening. Leeper changed his plea to guilty and was fined one dollar.

An affidavit had been filed against the Wetzler woman by Leeper, charging her with shooting within the corporation. Her hearing was set for the same time as Leeper's hearing, but the latter withdrew the charge against the woman and the case was dismissed.

David Temple, who was arrested Wednesday morning by Officer Cusic on a charge of embezzlement, brought against him by his father, was released from the city prison Thursday morning. Temple sold a load of oats for his father and represented that the oats was his property. He collected $72.19, which he converted to his own use. The father held a long conference with his son, Wednesday, and Thursday the boy was arraigned before the mayor. The father decided to withdraw the charge providing the boy promised to keep straight and repay the amount which he took from his parent.

The lad was given a lecture by the mayor and released on making a number of good promises.

Charles Foster, colored, appeared before the mayor, Wednesday evening, for a hearing on a charge of depositing night-soil in a vacant lot within the corporation limits of the city. Sanitary Officer Chapman, who filed the affidavit, appeared against Foster, but said he was unable to get any of the complainants to testify against Foster and the case was dismissed.

O. H. Apt, of Waldo, who reported to the police Sunday evening that his watch had been stolen from a pocket of his trousers while he was playing ball Sunday, has recovered his timepiece. Apt informed Chief Cornwell, Wednesday, that the watch had been returned to him by a woman who stated that she had picked it up on the street car.

PREPARATIONS FOR SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Y. M. C. A. Athletics for Coming Winter.

THE GYMNASIUM VERY ATTRACTIVE

Classes Will Be Organized According to a Schedule—Volley-Ball and Basket-Ball Will Be the Features. Fine Bowling League Is Planned. Other Features for Winter.

Preparations are being made to make the coming season of indoor athletics, at the Y. M. C. A. a banner one. The season for the gymnasium will open next Monday night, and there are already a large number of members in the various classes. Seven classes will be organized, and, according to the class schedule, each class will have the floor at specified times for work on two or three afternoons or evenings of each week. Some improvements are now under way in the gymnasium and it is the intention to add additional features that will make the gymnasium work inviting to all.

In connection with the regular class work and the opportunities afforded for developing in the gymnasium, volley-ball will be played every Wednesday evening after October 1. The teams which will compose the volley-ball league are made up of business and professional men. About November 1, an indoor baseball league will be organized and about the same time the basket-ball activities will start. Boxing and wrestling classes will be organized and held at a time most desirable to all, while carnivals of athletics for all members will be held at various times during the season.

The bowling league the coming season promises to be one of more interest than those of the past several seasons. The league will consist of eight clubs and four nights out of each week will be reserved for rolling scheduled games, while one alley will be reserved for members who can bowl at all times. In connection with the athletic advantages of the association, the night school, which affords ample opportunity for mastering a number of branches, has been enlarged. Rev. C. E. Smith will conduct a class in Latin and G. W. Hayes, one of the teachers at the High school, will open a class in physics, these two branches being added with a view to better preparing those who intend attending college, in the branches named.

Aside from the features mentioned is the swimming pool, which will be ready for use at all times, also the billiard parlor and the reading room.

OBJECTS TO BEING CALLED PUMPKINS

An Unusual Scene on South Main Street.

GREETINGS TURNED TO BITTER ENMITY

Two Old Friends Meet with a Smile and an Exchange of Homely Pleasantry—Little Man Calls Big Man "Old Pumpkins" and Trouble Follows—The Separation.

Some men don't like to be called pumpkins. For example:

A big red-faced farmer was untying his horse on south Main street, Wednesday afternoon, when a little man, wearing glasses, came along.

"Hello, there, you little reprobate," said the big man in a burst of coarse laughter.

"Why, hello, old pumpkins, how are you?" The little man was smiling a pleasant greeting to an old friend apparently. He walked up to the big man, hand outstretched, still smiling. "How's pumpkins?"

The great hand of the giant farmer was not outstretched to meet the other. His face was fairly purple from anger. His eyes had narrowed suddenly from open pleasantness to slits in which rage only appeared.

"Let me tell you something," the big fellow said and he pointed a fat finger in the face of the small man with spectacles. "If you ever call me pumpkins again I'll mash you so flat you'll never get up again. All your folks will find will be a grease spot, I—"

"Well, I never dreamed—"

"It don't matter about what you dreamed. I mean business. If you say pumpkins again I'll break those specs clean through your head just for the fun of it. And I want you to know that I can do it."

The angry man straightened to his full height. The other man looked like a pigmy. Just then a friend of the undersized one came and took him away. No coaxing was necessary.

The big man climbed into his seat, gave his horses a cut with the whip and drove away.

PARALYSIS OF HEART CAUSES LAD'S DEATH

Internal Injuries Lead to the Paralysis.

NO SURGEON CALLED TO ATTEND YOUTH

Inquiry as to the Passing of Benjamin, Son of Mr. and Mrs. John Oborn, Christian Scientists—Coroner Holds Inquest and Finds the Real Cause of Death.

Paralysis of the heart superinduced by internal injuries caused the death of fourteen-year-old Benjamin Oborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Oborn, Christian Scientists, residing at No. 616 east Church street. The boy died without a surgeon having been called. It had been given out that his death was due to heart disease brought on by over-exertion from riding his bicycle.

The youth died at the family home, Wednesday morning at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. S. H. Britton was called after death to prepare a death certificate, but owing to the fact that a surgeon had not attended him before death Coroner William H. Hinklin was notified. Before he could sign a death certificate an autopsy had to be held. He employed Dr. C. G. Smith, and the autopsy was performed at the Oborn residence, Wednesday afternoon.

In an interview, Thursday morning, Coroner Hinklin said that a gangreneous condition had been found in the boy's abdomen on the left side. "He had suffered internal injuries," said the coroner. "I understand that he fell from his bicycle two weeks ago."

Coroner Hinklin signed the burial certificate, Thursday. It gives the cause of death as paralysis of the heart and abdominal injuries as contributary.

The funeral services were held at the Oborn home, Thursday, at 2:30 o'clock Mrs. S. H. Britton, as reader of the First Church of Christ Scientists, officiating.

Interment was made in the Marion cemetery.

The class has only been organized about three months and has an enrollment of sixty-eight members.

STRUGGLE TO GET CONTROL OF BONDS

Little That Is New in the C., D. & M. Muddle.

Little has taken place in the last week in the affairs of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway company, now in the hands of receivers. Both the local committee, headed by Thomas A. Powell, and the Louisville committee have been busy trying to get control of a majority of the bonds of the company, but as neither has made a move, it is not probable that either has succeeded as yet in securing control of the bonds.

It is understood that the receivers are to be empowered to issue receivers' certificates for the purpose of taking care of the past-due interest on bonds of the underlying companies and also to provide for expenses incurred under the receivership. There does not seem to be any probability of an early adjustment of the affairs of the company. —Ohio State Journal.

Bonds Are Sold.

The commissioners for the Berry free turnpike sold eleven five per cent. bonds, amounting to $1,650, at the office of Attorney John H. Clark, Saturday afternoon, to James Monnette, whose premium bid was two dollars. There were no other bidders. The bonds have an average life of three and one-half years.

RELIGION BRANCHING OUT.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for September 19 Is a Quarterly Review. Acts 15:21.

"Religion is a commodity the peculiar nature of which is that the more we expect the more we have," quaintly declared a Massachusetts minister when the organization of the American board was objected to by a man who thought that the churches should look out first for the heathen at home. The saying was illustrated by the history of the Apostolic church, which we now pass in review, and, in a lesser but somewhat analogous degree, by the situation in this western world today.

An exported gospel means an expanded life. The very act of giving enlarges The widened horizon and increased power are not the only concomitants of missionary effort. The very vitality of Christianity at home is being quickened by the new stress that is being put upon its broader, faster proclamation at the ends of the earth. The Laymen's Missionary movement was quickly followed by the formation in the United States of the council of home missions; and in both Canada and the states the patriotism of the men interested in the laymen's movement has been manifestly intensified.

May we not again see something akin to the experience of the first century, when the church's entire conception of her mission underwent *a transformation because of her mis*sion work. She entered upon that as a sort of Christanized Judaism; she speedily found that her true character was to be that of a universal body, wherein Jew and Gentile, Roman and barbarian, bond and free, were all one in Christ Jesus. It is incredible that the present-day increase of native Christians in mission lands, with such marvelous seals of divine approval upon them at the Korean and Indian and Chinese revivals, and with their growing tendency to organize into self-supporting, self-governing and self-propagating bodies, should not greatly affect the character and thinking of the church universal.

Fighting Pioneers.

A doughty little Jew, trained as a scholar, and yet called to a life of active affairs, is the center of the Sunday-school lessons studied for three months past, the main theme of which has been his second and third missionary journeys. A fascinating figure is Paul, one of the most distinct and potent personalities of all history. Wrapped up in his shabby cloak was a character which meant more to Europe than did Alexander or any of the Caesars. For the great deed God prepares the great man. No instrument less than Paul could have served for this tremendous bursting of Jewish bonds by the early church, and the accompanying invasion of the citadel of paganism.

The supremacy of Paul was not recognized then as now; it takes time to reveal greatness. So his imperial decrees did not work out without opposition. He had to do even more fighting than falls to the lot of the average pioneer. It was not as a bookish monk, but as a man in a world of men that this great apostle did his work, fighting for every step of progress he made.

Consider some of the outstanding conflicts which have come up in the studies of recent weeks. There was that dramatic fracas with the evil spirits in the fortune telling maid, and with her masters, who represented the inevitable conflict of vested interests with free truth. Then there were the seven sons of Sceva, soothsayers, who were overcome in a way that set the community at gaze. The great battle with Demetrius and the Ephesian silversmiths, supported by a throaty mob, is a classic of literature. The philosophic struggle with the wise men of Athens was in contrast with the victory over the Ephesian magicians, and the subsequent bonfire, but it was all of a piece with the general war in which Paul was a leader. The mad unreason of the Jewish-inspired mobs which were met all along the way might almost be characterized as a constant factor in the apostle's work. The lesson is that all Christian pioneering means opposition, and the modern missionary crusade has no more right to expect freedom from danger and difficulties than had the itinerating propaganda of Paul and his friends. There will be martyrdoms *and riots and lawsuits and in*ternational complications before the church's mission work is done.

The Other Check.

An intimate study of public men will show that most of them have their pet aversions and enmities. These conflicts show up in sharp relief, both in the history that is written in books, and in that which is being written in the newspapers. Remarkably enough, Paul seemed to have none of this. Not that he was flabby or forceless. The manner in which he made the Philippian officials who had beaten him and Silas without cause come to their knees revealed the spirit of the man. So likewise his refusal to take Mark along on the second missionary journey.

But he cherished no animosities, held no grudges. He was great enough for forgiveness. The jailer who had held him prisoner he could save and serve, and Mark he could later receive as a cherished friend. This buffeted and persecuted apostle grew mellower and more loving to the end of his days, because he would not make room in his heart for hate. Like his Master, he turned the other cheek.

More sublime magnanimity than Paul displayed toward his own countrymen can not be found, except in the example of his Master. The Jews hated and hounded this Christianized disciple of Gamaliel. Again and again they sought his life. They piled up persecution, so that stripes and stonings and imprisonments were his frequent portion. Withal he loved them. At every new city, he turned first to his own countrymen. To the last his cry was, "My heart's desire and my supplication to God is for them, that they may be saved."

The Word That Makes New.

That person reads the day's newspaper in vain who does not perceive that these experiences of Paul have a direct bearing upon the present tendency of thought, which is toward a vague and nebulous naturalism and liberalism in religon, with no need for a divine Redeemer. The one essential work that this little band of missionaries were doing was the preaching of a gospel that changed men's lives. They held the word which made character new. All the tumult that dogged their steps was due to the disciple-creating power of their testimony. Their good news, accepted, turned men from necromancy and from idolatry. It hurt some "big business," but it helped men and women.

That is the great apologetic for Christianity. Its power to produce saints in the supreme Christian evidence. There is no answering that argument. One convert made over into holiness of life confounds all the rationalism of a blind scholasticism. Some of us see in the triumphs of the cross on mission lands today a new infusion of vitality and confidence for the church at home. The exported gospel is returning, to save those who sent it out.

A big question in modern Japan, and in many other places besides, is whether the educated man needs a religion. It is not culture enough? And, even granting the necessity for a religion, should it be one which makes so much of sin and a cross and a heart at peace? Paul faced that condition in cultivated Athens, where "liberal" ideas were all the rage, so that men, in their eagerness to show intellectual and spiritual hospitality to all beliefs, erected an altar "to the unknown God." Undoubtedly it is harder to convert an educated man than an untutored one; yet Athens needed the gospel as sorely as Corinth or Ephesus.

The sufficiency of Christ for all classes was Paul's great platform. He had good news for the slave-girl fortune teller, for the rough Philippian jailer, and for the rabble; and it was only the same Good News that won Crispus, the ruler of the Corinthian synagogue, and Dionysius, the learned Areopagite, and Apollos, the polished Alexandrian orator.

A Hero's Reward.

Back of all adventure back of all controversy, back of all travel and teaching and suffering, there looms in grandeur the figure of the human Paul. The man overtops the word and the deed. In all these various experiences he was winning to himself the allegiance of devoted friends, and lavishly pouring out his soul's richest treasures of affection. We do not have to look long at him before we see that this man lived a royal life. For him existence was never tame or stale or profitless.

So the truth emerges that life's sweetest satisfactions are to be found in the pursuit of great and selfless goals. Paul was at no point to be pitied, but ever to be envied for he was doing a man's work nobly—nay, he was doing God's work divinely. He found life supremely worth living because he merged his life and his labors in his Master's crying, "For to me to live is Christ."

PEARY DOES RIGHT IN TAKING STORES

Secretary of Peary Arctic Club Gives Opinions.

PEARY CARES FOR RUDOLPH FRANCKE

Finds Francke Suffering of Scurvy and Gets Him to a Doctor—Takes Abandoned Stores of Dr. Cook in Keeping with a Custom Followed by Explorers at All Times.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 14.—Special despatches received here, Monday, from Sydney, C. B., say that, fortified by numerous documents, Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic club, denies any wrongdoing by the explorer in connection with taking Dr. Cook's stores. The secretary is quoted as saying:

"A false light has been put on the account of taking Dr. Cook's stores. I have received documents from Commander Peary which prove that his taking those abandoned stores was right.

"Rudolph Francke, of the Cook expedition, came down sick; Peary took care of him.

"Peary found at various stations letters from Francke, the most imploring letters, filled with wild appeals for aid.

"Commander Peary took Francke with him to his doctor at Etah. The doctor himself has written me to that effect. He found Francke suffering from scurvy. He had him cared for.

"Then Peary pushed along to the points where he found Cook's stores that he had established the year before. He guarded these from bears and gave aid to members of the party. He even offered to send out scouts to endeavor to locate Dr. Cook. Nothing more could have been done by mortal man than Peary did.

"When he found abandoned stores he took them. As an officer of the United States navy, he had a right to these. It is quite the common practice among explorers to take all abandoned stores. By his action, Peary simply followed custom. All his letters, written long before this controversy arose, prove conclusively that Peary was guilty of no offense against Dr. Cook.

"Cook's cached stuff was in danger of the elements, wild animals and Eskimos, and it has long been an established custom that whenever cached stuff was found without a guard any other explorer could take it. Peary did nothing wrong."

Cook adherents here point out that Francke was in charge of the Cook supplies, and therefore they were not "abandoned." They say Peary had no right to believe Cook was dead nor to believe that Francke would not guard his property, and that his claim that the goods were his by right of finding them is untenable.

Monday, Hatcher was arrested on a charge of defrauding a boarding-house keeper, the affidavit being filed in Justice Conley's court. Constable Bigford went to Marysville, where the fellow had been placed under arrest. He was to have settled, Tuesday morning.

Officer J. W. Fish, of the court of Justice Gompf, heard of Hatcher's arrest accidentally and immediately proceeded to Marysville to place him under arrest on a charge of conversion of property. Hatcher bought a suit of clothes on the installment plan and left the city without completing the payments.

THE YOUNG WOMEN RECEIVING CALLERS

President A. E. Smith's Ruling Is Violated.

President A. E. Smith, of the Ohio Northern university, at Ada, who recently ruled that the young women students of the university should receive no gentlemen callers without a good excuse, during their school term, has met with a rebuff. A number of the gentler sex have stolen a march on Dr. Smith. A short time ago several gentlemen from the South American republics arrived and took up studies in the senior class. The young ladies soon began taking language lessons in Spanish from the young foreigners, which plan gave them plenty of opportunities to have the gentlemen call upon them. The southern students have become very popular with the girls at the university and are much envied by the boys.

FIRST OFFICIAL ACT OF JUDGE SCOFIELD

Grants an Injunction in a Ditch Matter.

SIMEON B. RICE CLAIMS DAMAGES

Secures Injunction Against the Construction of a Ditch—Matter of Mary Leverton Against Ellen Mack—Charge Made in a Partition Suit—Some Court Notes.

After being sworn in by Attorney P J Monahan, as a notary public, Monday morning, Judge William E. Scofield's first official act as the new judge of the common pleas court was to grant a temporary injunction restraining the county commissioners from constructing a ditch through the farm of Simson B. Rice, in Scott township

The petition was filed in the injunction matter by Attorneys Crissinger & Guthery for their client, Mr. Rice, who represented that a petition to construct a ditch through his premises had been granted and the contract let to Frank I. Jackson; that, unless restrained, the work would be done, although he had filed a damage claim of $200, which was ignored by the county commissioners. In his petition, the plaintiff alleged that he would be damaged to that amount, as it was proposed to dig the ditch through a locust grove, which he had planted at considerable expense. The county commissioners, Surveyor E. S. Ault and Frank I. Jackson were named as defendants.

In the partition suit of Mary Leverton against Ellen Mack and others, the plaintiff has filed a reply, in which she sets up that she signed a deed conveying her interest in the property to Thomas Graham owing to misrepresentation She says that at the time she signed the deed she thought she was merely conveying to Graham her interest in the personal property.

A partition suit was filed Monday, in the common pleas court, by Charles R. Randall, through Attorney Harry J. Nichols, against Ray and Emerson Randall, minors.

The grand jury adjourned, Friday afternoon, to meet, Monday, September 20. The jury convened to deliberate upon nineteen cases last Tuesday. At the time, Judge Daniel Babst said that he would like to get away by the following Monday and especially requested Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice to finish up all the business of the grand jurors by that time.

Diligently the prosecuting attorney and the grand jurors worked with a view to cleaning up the platter of cases, and seeing that it would be impossible to examine all the 117 witnesses it was decided to adjourn until Judge Babst returns or until a new judge is appointed in the place of the late Boston G. Young.

The present grand jury docket is the biggest in the history of the county, say attaches of the courthouse. It is also regarded as the most important in the number of serious crimes to be considered.

In the receivership matter of A. F. Chapman and others against the Mirror Publishing company, Judge Daniel Babst, Thursday, September 9, granted Receiver J. W. Jacoby's motion to sell the book accounts at public auction. He set up that there are numerous small accounts still unpaid, most of them being worthless and disputed, and that the collection of them would entail extra expense.

In the suit of John M. Gardner and Berry Kelly, partners doing business as Gardner & Kelly, against the Layton Oil & Gas company, the costs are ordered paid by September 28, or the cause will be dismissed.

In the suit of Minnie Northrup against M E Brinker, the plaintiff has filed a reply setting up a general denial This is an action for judgment for work and labor as a domestic

The plaintiff has been given until September 25 to file an amended petition in the civil action of Elizabeth Dodds against Benjamin F. Adams.

In the suit of John Durham against Henry Fish, the defendant has been given leave to plead further by September 25.

In the suit of Joseph J. Arthur against James Harruff, a dispute over land the plaintiff has given notice of appeal.

The defendant has been given until September 25 to plead in the suits of Mary Rhoads against John Jacoby.

In the money only suit of Enola Reynolds again Ressler Brothers, a motion for a new trial has been overruled.

In the suit of Ira F. Matteson against J. G. Mann and others, an action for money only, the plaintiff has been given leave to plead by September 25.

A motion to dismiss the appeal in the suit of Joseph Meeker against the Marion Preserving company and others was sustained by Judge Babst, Friday afternoon. The appeal was dismissed because the transcript and bond in appeal were not filed in the common pleas court within the statutory time. This was an action originally brought in the court of Justice Charles H. Conley for work and labor.

In the injunction suit of Erasmus J. Ford against the board of commissioners of the Linwood free turnpike road, a motion to retax the costs has been overruled.

A motion to quash is overruled and the demurrer to the petition as to the defendant, Barlow, has been sustained in the money only suit of Cornelius Breen against John Patterson and others.

A demurrer and motion to the petition have been overruled in the matter of Fred L. Carhart, receiver for the Marion Tool & Specialty company, against Walter Bolander. The same ruling applies in the case against Walter L. Layman.

In the civil action of S. H. DeLong, receiver, against Jacob P. Barnthouse, a motion to dismiss the petition has been overruled.

A motion to dismiss the petition is sustained and leave to file an amended petition by September 25 has been given the plaintiff in the matter of Roscoe Oborn, receiver, against the United States Fidelity & Guaranty company.

In the error proceedings of G. W. Jennings against Pultenney & Utsler no error was found. The court dismissed the petition-in-error with judgment against the plaintiff-in-error for costs. This action started in the court of Justice C. H. Conley over the ownership of a piano.

A demurrer to the petition has been overruled in the suit of Fred Turner against Erasmus J. Ford and others.

In the civil action of Luther A. Briggs and others, executors, against Eugene W. Briggs and others, a motion to amend the petition has been sustained and the plaintiff given leave to plead by September 25.

In the partition suit of John G. Morgenthaler against Jacob F. Morgenthaler, Judge Babst, Friday, ordered a division of the premises. Frank Epley, Sidney Gruber and Samuel Kraner were named as commissioners.

Harley Osborne, through Attorneys DeGolley & DeGolley, brought an action in the common pleas court, Saturday, against the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway company and Eli M. West and George Whysall, receivers, for $1,000 damages as a result of alleged injuries received in attempting to board an interurban car enroute to Prospect.

Without any fault of his own, the plaintiff says he was thrown to the ground with great force, sustaining a bruised left shoulder, left arm and leg that caused him to become sick.

A suit to partition the estate of the late Peter Ebert, of Richland township, was filed in the common pleas court by Andrew Ebert through Attorneys Mouser & Moloney Friday afternoon. Adam Ebert, Margaret Geckler, Elizabeth Schimpf, Eva Haas, Henry Ebert, Frank G. Ebert, Mary E. Heinlich, Anna Jones, John Ebert, Henry A. Ebert, Charles P. Ebert and Ernestine Ebert are named as defendants. The last two named are son and former wife of the deceased.

The partition suit is the sequel to the appointment of two administrators of the estate by Probate Judge William S. Spencer.

CAPTAIN OF PEARY'S ARCTIC SHIP AND THE EXPLORER'S SPOKESMAN

Captain Robert Bartlett, commander of Peary's Arctic ship, the Roosevelt, has been of great assistance to the explorer. Captain Bartlett is one of the most experienced Arctic navigators in the world, having sailed the northern seas since his boyhood. The explorer's stanchest supporter in the controversy concerning Dr. Cook's trip to the pole is Herbert L. Bridgman, of the Explorers' club, in New York City. When Mr. Bridgman received a despatch from Peary announcing the discovery of the pole he promptly resigned from the committee of the club, which was arranging for a dinner to Dr. Cook. Bridgman is Peary's official spokesman while the explorer is away, and it was he who cabled to all the foreign geographical societies announcing Peary's achievement He criticises Cook sharply on adopting Peary's methods and secretly setting out to beat the veteran to the pole.

THE SUPPLY OF HOGS VISIBLY DIMINISHED

Report for Ohio Is Short Twenty Per Cent.

331,834 FEWER THAN PREVIOUSLY

All Other Livestock in Ohio Shows Considerable Increase Over the Previous Year, but Every County in the State Reports Less Number of Hogs—Increase of Sheep.

Columbus, O., Sept. 10.—Ohio's 1909 visible supply of hogs is twenty per cent. short of what it was in 1908, and the general shortage in hogs the country over makes prospects for cheaper pork small.

Higher prices of feed during the years 1907 and 1908 resulted in "running off" the hogs to the market, which accounts for the shortage shown by the livestock statistics furnished by the assessors, the compilation of which was completed Friday, by Auditor of State E. W. Fullington.

The total number of hogs reported in the state is 1,320,755, or 331,834 fewer than in 1908, while in 1907 the number was about the same as last year. Every county in the state shows a decrease in the number of hogs, Knox showing the least decrease, losing only eighteen.

All other Ohio livestock shows increases over the previous year. The numberi of horses reported is 765,032, an increase of ,671; cattle 1,307,528, an increase of 534; mules 22,331, increase of 1,251; sheep 2,608,203, increase of 113,409.

Darke county leads on horses with 18,757; Ashtabula on cattle, with 27,170; Hamilton county on mules, with 1,213; Harrison county on sheep, with 122,126, and Fayette on hogs, with 43,311.

A FIRE-EXTINGUISHER TURNED ON THE CROWD

E. E. Havill Quickly Ends a Belling Party.

THE POLICE REFUSE TO PROVIDE RELIEF

Find It Impossible To Break Down an Old-Time Custom of Disturbing Newly-Married People—The Use of a Fire-Extinguisher Causes a Quick Scatterment.

Turning a fire-extinguisher's contents on a mob of 200 men and women who had come to bell him, E. E. Havill, superintendent of the Copeland-Starner Shoe company, created a panic that resulted in slight injury to many, Monday night about 9 o'clock.

Last Wednesday, Mr. Havill was married at Dayton to Mrs. Carrie Roseberry, of this city. Returning to Marion they began housekeeping immediately at the corner of Park boulevard and Darius street. Ever since the marriage the employes of the shoe factory have been planning to bell the couple.

Monday night, equipped with the usual instruments of a belling party, the "joy" crowd went to the Havill home. The bridegroom, however, did not take kindly to the din; he looked upon the outbreak as the work of hoodlums. Furthermore, he didn't propose to have his domestic peace interrupted so early in the game of marital life, so he telephoned the police.

And the police—what did they do? Why, they laughed at him. Belling parties a nu-i-sance in Marion? Not that anybody knows of. They've been belling people around here ever since the first court-house was built and never got over it. But Mr. Havill is a comparative newcomer. Perhaps he never heard of a belling with old tin cans and horns, or any old thing that contains a noise-making power. Maybe they don't have such things where Mr. Havill formerly lived. Anyhow, the police deliberately cackled at his discomfiture.

The bridegroom told the crowd that he did not like such "carryings-on," which only made the boys and girls more determined to make all the noise they could. Somehow they had been given the impression that Mr. Havill and his bride would like it.

Then came the climax. The bridegroom had a happy idea. The fire-extinguisher! Why not use it? He did.

Result: Crowd dispersed in frenzied endeavor to escape the burning chemicals. Belling comes to sudden halt and is not continued. Bridegroom regards his act as good joke. Police laugh first: he laughs last. But his victims are angry.

Taken to Asylum.

Elza J. Howser, who has been employed for a number of years at the Flach meat-market, was removed to the asylum for the insane at Columbus, Monday, where it is hoped a course of treatment will bring about his recovery. Mr. Howser's misfortune dates from an illness he suffered about one year ago. He has been very violent, but the attending physicians state there is every reason for hope for his full recovery. His wife and two small children reside on Cherry street.

TWO YOUNG AMERICANS IN BLACK HAND WORK

They Write Letter Threatening L. V. Uncapher.

DEMAND SUM OF $500 FROM VICTIM

Youths Are Found Searching for the Money at Point Where Uncapher Is Ordered To Place It—The Youths Are Known, but Is Likely No Arrests Will Be Made.

Just when it was thought that Marion was free from the workings of the Black Hand society there looms up the evidence that there is still a gang operating in Marion. This time, however, the society is not composed of Italians, but young Americans, and the society likely consists of only two members.

L. V. Uncapher, of Orchard street, was to be the victim of the new gang, but Mr. Uncapher proved a poor victim. Last Tuesday, a letter was delivered to the Uncapher home by the mail carrier and addressed to Mr. Uncapher. As he happened to be away from home at the time, his wife opened the letter and on reading its contents became badly frightened, believing that it was sent from the original gang.

The letter was written on ladies' writing paper and sealed in a common envelope. When Mr. Uncapher returned home he was handed the letter by his wife. In substance the letter demanded of Mr. Uncapher that he place $500 at the third pole to the southwest of the grandstand of Webb park by 6 o'clock last Sunday evening. The letter further requested that the money be in bills, all of the denomination of five dollars, and be sealed in a fruit jar so that they would not get wet. The letter threatened death to Mr. Uncapher if the wish was not complied with, and also cautioned him against making an effort to catch the writers. The letter was poorly written in pencil and signed "Black Hand."

Mr. Uncapher did not take the matter seriously and was of the opinion that some of his friends were putting up a joke on him. Sunday afternoon, while talking with G. B. Christian, Mr. Uncapher brought the matter up as a joke and displayed the letter to his visitor. Mr. Christian took the matter very seriously and said that steps should be taken to break it up. Scott Wooley, who resides near the ball park, was taken into the confidence of the men and kept watch on the place to see if any person or persons turned up to get the money.

About 6 o'clock Mr. Wooley and his son took a walk. At the third pole beyond the park Mr. Wooley saw two boys searching in the grass around the pole. When they saw Wooley approaching they crossed the road and sat down. Wooley asked "Are you looking for Jones?" The boys replied that they were not, and Wooley asked if they could see their party coming from any direction. With the question hardly finished, the lads arose and took to their heels down Uncapher avenue. Wooley and his companion knew the boys and did not give chase.

In view of what took place it is evident that the boys meant business so far as wanting the money is concerned. Mr. Uncapher knows both of the lads, neither of whom is seventeen years old. It is his opinion that the reading of the stories of the workings of the "Black Hand" and five-cent libraries placed the desperado spirit in the boys, who probably did not realize the enormity of the crime they were committing. For this reason Mr. Uncapher will probably not have the lads punished.

FINDS WIFE DEAD AND MONEY GONE

Unusual Story Told at Springfield by a Syrian.

Springfield, O., Sept. 14.—William Dahey, a Syrian, who applied for naturalization papers here today, told an unusual story to local officials. He has been peddling shawls and came to this city from his home at Loveland about two weeks ago. On his return to his home the following Sunday, he found his wife dead, and he declares that the only information vouchsafed by authorities was that she died of concussion of the brain. Inasmuch as a bracelet costing $80 and his savings, of years, $600, are missing, he believes his wife was killed and robbed. He has been in this country since 1901 and sent for his sweetheart and was married only seven months ago.

NATURALISTS EATEN BY MOUNTAIN TIGERS

Remains Are Found by a Party Bent on Rescue.

Port Limon, Costa Rico, Sept. 14.—Two naturalists, William Johns, an American, and R. Gentrech, a Swede, were killed, and devoured by tigers in the mountains of Turrialba, their bones, which had been stripped of flesh, being found Monday by a rescuing party. A dead tiger nearby indicated the men had slain one of the beasts before being killed themselves.

300 CAPTAINS WILL DEMAND MORE PAY

Commensurate with Their Skill at Navigation.

New York, Sept. 13.—Three hundred captains and officers of British steamers entering this and other American ports are about to present an ultimatum to the directors of their lines demanding an increase in pay commensurate with their skill and the risk they assume in bringing a vessel across the Atlantic. The lines represented include the Cunard, White Star, Atlantic Transport, Wilson and Anchor.

A former officer on one of the big liners made a statement today that the fare paid by one saloon passenger on the Lusitania is sufficient to pay the wages of the captain and his six officers and about eight of the ship's employes. He says that the officers of the big liners are leaving the service as fast as they can secure positions on land and that the maritime life holds out no inducements for young men.

The captains and officers expect that their demands will be met by the British directors and there will be no necessity of a strike.

OFFERS $20,000 TO THE AVIATORS

Paris Newspaper Wants To See Some Practical Work.

The Matin, in view of the results at Rheims, which have shown the aeroplane's capabilities as never before realized, even by aviators, believes the time ripe for these machines to leave the race track and make real voyages from town to town. It therefore offers a prize of 100,000 francs ($20,000), to be awarded to the owner of the machine which makes the fastest time in a circuit from Paris to Dijon, Belfort, Nancy, Lille and Paris before Aug. 31, 1910.

All the French newspapers are enthusiastic over the great success of aviation week (last week), holding that it constitutes the greatest landmark in the history of the conquest of the air. They praise the enterprise and daring of the aviators, paying special tribute to the American, Glenn H. Curtiss, as a modest, consistent and patient worker, whose efforts have been crowned by the blue ribbon of the air.

TOLEDO MAN'S DEATH RECALLS EXPRESSION

The Origin of the Expression of "O. K."

Cornelius Kendall, youngest son of Orrin Kendall, from whose initials the use of "O. K." (meaning all right) is said to have sprung, was buried in Toledo, O., his death having taken place there a few days ago. In the civil war Mr. Kendall was a member of the Chicago board of trade battery and was also a member of the firm of O. Kendall & Sons, whose bakery was in Chicago.

The firm furnished bread and crackers for the army, and on the crackers were the initials "O. K." These crackers are said to have been the only ones the soldiers relished, and their expression "These are all right" later developed into "These are O. K."

Trip Is Abandoned.

Columbus, O., Sept. 14.—Governor Judson Harmon and military staff will not be at the Seattle exposition on Ohio day, September 24. The governor today officially declared off the trip, giving the serious illness of Mrs. Harmon's brother, Dr. Scoble, of Kankakee, Illinois, and Attorney Conklin, of Hamilton, widower of Mrs. Harmon's only sister, as the cause.

Marion Citizens Gladly Testify and Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Marion citizen:

Joseph Voll, merchant tailor, 100 N State street, Marion, Ohio, says: "Since I told of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills in October, 1899, other members of my family have taken this remedy and have been greatly benefited. I suffered from pain in my loins and my back grew so sensitive that to straighten after stooping was a difficult operation. There was also a dull, heavy pain in the back of my head and my kidneys caused me a great deal of annoyance by becoming disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Schmidt & Co.'s Pharmacy, brought me prompt relief and after continuing their use a short time, I was cured. I am in a position to vouch for the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills and I recommend them highly to anyone troubled by his back or kidneys."

J. R. BRADLEY, WHO BACKED COOK, AND THEIR SHIP IN ARCTIC ICE

John R. Bradley, the New York millionaire, hunter of big game, was one of the happiest men in America when he heard that Dr. Frederick A. Cook, of Brooklyn had reported having reached the North pole and was returning safely to civilization. It was Mr. Bradley who furnished the funds and fitted out the Cook expedition. He had such confidence in Dr. Cook that his sporting blood was stirred when the latter told him at the time they were preparing for a hunting trip in the arctics that he believed he could beat Peary to the pole. Dr. Cook said that an expenditure of a few thousand dollars in addition to the cost of the hunting trip would fit out a polar expedition. Accordingly the fishing schooner which Bradley bought was provisioned for the polar search, and after the hunt Dr. Cook continued northward and Bradley returned to New York. Mr. Bradley says he never had any doubt from the time he bade Dr. Cook goodby in the frozen North that he would carry the American flag to the pole.

STATE FAIR TRYING FOR ANOTHER TOUCH

Wants an Appropriation of $200,000 for Buildings.

Columbus, Sept. 14.—The state fair board wants the legislature to allow it $200,000 to enlarge the fair ground buildings and to erect other buildings and a new grand stand. Last year a grand stand holding 5,000 was erected, but it is not half large enough. About double the amount of space available is needed for the rapidly-increasing number of exhibits. The fair yielded a clear profit of $20,000, the total receipts being $86,000.

One of the most fantastic ballooning projects of the past was that of an Austrian who suggested, nearly a century ago, that balloons might be guided in any desired direction with the aid of trained eagles.

COOK AND ESKIMOS HUNTING BIG GAME FOR POLAR SEARCH

The e pictures from John R. Bradley's Arctic hunting trip show the Cook party killing game to be used as meat on the trip to the pole. Mr. Bradley points out that one of the little snapshots shows a picture of one of the young Eskimos who accompanied Dr. Cook on his amazing dash across the frozen polar sea and saw the stars and stripes planted at the top of the world. The man is indicated by an arrow in one of the pictures. The others show some of the big game killed, one a polar bear and the other a walrus. The meat of these animals was dried and 1,700 pounds of it loaded on the sledges for dog food. Dr. Cook sent these photographs to Mr. Bradley by Rudolph Francke, the last white man to see him before the polar dash.

A plan is outlined for railway extension in Northwestern China, Mongolia and Chinese Turkestan. It is also proposed that steps be taken to create a corps of engineers, and to develop mines and iron works, with a view to supplying railway material and rendering the country independent of foreign sources of supply.

COLORS OF FLOWERS ALTERED BY CULTURE

Instances Familiar to Flower Growers.

SAME COLORS IN THE WILD STATE

Flowers of the Same Species Have the Same Color Until They Are Put Under Cultivation — Then Some Surprising Changes Are Very Quickly Brought About.

In general all the flowers of the same species in the wild state have plants of crowfoot or buttercup and the same color. For example, all dandelion have yellow flowers; in a few species different colors are found. For example, the flowers of the milkwort may be blue, violet, red or white. Much greater variation is shown by cultivated plants.

In these the variation of color of the flowers appeared long ago, but in recent years many new colors have been produced which had either not hitherto been observed or which, if they did appear, occasionally were not selected for preservation and development. The floriculturalists of the present day, says the Umschau, carefully observe and endeavor to fix every new shade, even if it is not particularly beautiful, for the desideratum is novelty, and there is no telling what will please popular taste.

A species of primrose in the wild state always has lemon yellow flowers, which vary only slightly in tint. Cultivation has produced both lighter and darker shades, but until recently no color but yellow. Hence it was the more surprising when, a few years ago, a pure blue variety was produced, which has since retained its general color, but has developed all shades, from the palest sky blue to the deep blue of the cornflower.

The Chinese primrose, when cultivated in the garden, bore until recently only red and white flowers. In this species also other colors have lately been produced, not only violet, but also blue, though not so pure a blue as that of the species first mentioned. Another example is offered by the gladiolus, which formerly bore only white and red flowers, but has recently developed a blue flowering variety.

A case of a somewhat different character is presented by the asters, which have long shown a great variety of colors, but in which recently a great many new shades have been produced, including some which would not at one time been considered beautiful; for example, copper color.

Very numerous, on the other hand, are the species which have long shown great variation in color and have recently developed many new shades, with the exception of blue. Especially conspicuous is the dahlia, which is now found in every color except blue, although many propagators are making earnest efforts to produce a blue dahlia, which would bring great profit to its originator. A blue carnation would be equally valuable, but it has not yet been produced, although the colors of carnations have lately been enriched by many new shades.

The new varieties of canna also show great diversity of color, including almost pure white and a beautiful light pink, but a blue canna has not yet appeared. In the begonia not only blue is lacking, but also all shades from red to violet. Finally we may mention the variety of poppy called the Shirley, which is greatly admired for its play of color. Here, however, the colors range only from white to rose and vermillion. Blue and violet colors are complete wanting, and so is yellow, which is very common in the begonia.

Finally, there are species which, notwithstanding many years of cultivation, have shown little variation in the color of their flowers or have produced only new shades, but not new colors. Among these are the fuchias, which show only various shades of red. A blue or a yellow fuchia would be a curiosity. Another example is furnished by Cyclamen persicum, in which many years of cultivation have only changed the original color scheme of a dark red throat and a white or pink tip so far as to deepen the red throat to crimson and almost to violet, and on the other hand to enace it altogether, producing a pure white flower.

Quite recently, however, an approximation to a yellow has been obtained by the production of a salmon pink cyclamen. Similar cases are furnished by the Alpine forget-me-not, in which merely the shade of the original blue color has been slightly marigold, the colors of which vary only from yellow and orange to brown.

From the foregoing remarks it is evident that although very many new colors have recently been produced by cultivation in the flowers of numerous species of plants the production of these changes is entirely dependent upon the original predisposition to variation possessed by the plant. Without these tendencies to variation no new color can be produced, either by the gardener or by natural selection, for if there is no variation selection is impossible.—New York Sun.

The petroleum areas of the United States at present known are set down at 8,850 square miles, or somewhat larger than the state of Massachusetts; and the gas area at 10,075 square miles, or slightly more in area than the state of Vermont.

RAILROAD.

"All passenger trains, freight trains and yard engines must stop still at 2:30 p. m., Sunday, September 12 for two minutes, account of funeral of Mr. E. H. Harriman. See that there is no failure" is a copy of an order issued from division headquarters, Sunday. It was observed all along the Erie system.

The depot employes had an exciting experience early Monday morning with a demented woman, who was on her way from Dayton to Youngstown. The woman was a passenger on No. 11 and was ticketed through to her destination. However, instead of going on east from here, she got off the train and hid behind the Krause shoe store until after the train had gone. She suffered the hallucination that people were after her and she was much worried for fear that they would catch her. She would not tell what she feared they would do. She fussed and fumed around until Erie passenger, No. 12, pulled in. She was approached by Officer Cusic, who had been apprised of the woman's actions. He talked to her, trying to induce her to go on to her destination. However, she stated that she had to go up street on some business, giving as her business, a visit to an attorney's office to get him to help her keep the followers away. Officer Cusic said he would accompany her up street. After walking a short distance she consented to continue her journey.

It is thought that the woman has run away from her home.

The insane woman, who attracted so much attention and gave the railroad men and police officers so much trouble here, early Monday morning, attempted to kill herself at Kent, Monday. She gave the train crew a great deal of trouble as far as Kent and finally got out of the train unobserved by the crew. As the train, Erie passenger No. 12, started to pull out, she attempted to crawl under the front wheels of the engine. However, her actions were observed by the engineer and the train was stopped. She was taken to her destination at Youngstown.

The Erie is experimenting with a new switchstand, the product of the Rmapo Iron Works, of Milburn, New York. The new switchstand is of recent invention and is expected to be a great improvement over the old stands. One was installed, Monday, in the local yards and is giving satisfaction. A point that the manufacturers make for their product is that it will work automatically when an engine or car chances in run through a switch.

Some men are too lazy to complain if they can't find work.

FIRST MONARCH TO PAY HOMAGE TO EXPLORER COOK

The king of Denmark was the first ruler to honor Dr. Frederick A. Cook on his return from the pole. All Copenhagen went wild when the intrepid American reached there. King Frederick received him at the palace and entertained him at luncheon. The monarch said that the conquest of the pole had been the dream of Danish explorers for ages, but since Denmark could not have the honor of the discovery he was glad that America had gained it. It was announced on the day the first bulletin of Cook's achievement was received that the king would decorate the explorer.

JUDGE C. H. NORRIS PAYS TRIBUTE TO DEAD

Talks Tenderly of His Departed Friends.

LATE JUDGE YOUNG AND FRANKLIN ADAMS

The Crawford County Bar Association Holds a Meeting Saturday and Eulogies by Judges Norris and Thomas Beer Are Received—Mr Adams Is Well Known Here.

The Crawford County Bar association paid tribute to the memory of the late Judge Boston G. Young, Saturday. In speaking of the eulogy delivered by Judge C. H. Norris, of this city, the Bucyrus Forum says:

"The eulogy upon Boston G. Young was pronounced by Judge Caleb H. Norris, who had come here for that purpose. His diction is chaste and beautiful, and his language simple yet effective, being within the comprehension of all. In his tribute to his friend and former colleague he was at his best, and his address was conceded to be one of the finest of the many brilliant orations he has delivered in this city."

At the same meeting eulogies of the late Franklin Adams, the oldest members of the Crawford county bar for many years prior to his death, were heard. Judge C. H. Norris and Judge Thomas Beer contributed beautiful tributes to the memory of the departed. The eulogy of Judge Beer, who was unable to be present because of illness, was read by his daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Beer. Franklin Adams was about ninety-five years of age at the time of his death and during his practice of law formed many friendships in this city.

GEORGE PARKER DIES AT COUNTRY HOME

Death Comes as a Great Shock to Friends.

La Rue, Sept. 11.—[Special.]—George Parker, aged sixty-two years, died at his home three miles southwest of here this morning at 1 o'clock. His death was caused by bowel trouble, of which he had suffered only a few days. His death was unexpected and came as a shock to his family and many friends.

The deceased was born in England and came to this country when a young man. He had been a resident of this county about twenty years and was well known and highly respected. He became a member of the Methodist church in England when quite young and was a member of the Methodist church here at the time of his death. His rugged honest and Christian integrity characterized his whole life and gained him the respect of the entire community.

A widow and five children survive. The children are Mrs. John James of DeCliff; Mrs. Ross Sernbaugh, of Forest; Mrs. C. O. Raber, of Mooreville, Indiana; John Parker, of near Meeker, and William Parker, south of here.

The funeral will be held from the M. E. church at La Rue, Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. G. T. Kline officiating. Interment will be made in the LaRue cemetery.

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR THE VILLAGE

A Move To Locate a Creamery at LaRue.

LaRue is to have a new industry if the farmers of that vicinity can be interested. R. R. Johnson, president of the Westerville Creamery company, was in the village last week endeavoring to interest the residents of that locality in the new project.

A meeting of the citizens of LaRue and the farmers in that section of the county was held in the town hall Friday evening. While only about fifty were present, yet considerable interest was manifested.

Grant Copeland was chairman and C. S. Stahl, secretary of the meeting. Mr. Johnson was present and explained what was required of the farmers. No capital is sought. All that is required is that the farmers sell their milk product to the creamery. If 300 cows can be found in that vicinity and the farmers promise their support, the creamery will be located there.

The proceeding of E. R. Taylor, as manager of the Marion Harness company against J. W. Patton, in the court of Justice C. H. Conley, has been settled out of court, the matter having resulted from a misunderstanding. Developments in the matter show that Taylor and Patton have dealt with each other for the past several years and that all business dealings have been satisfactory throughout. Both of the parties deplore the misunderstanding.

Relative to the closing of the Maxwell garage, Patton states that he was away at the time and knew nothing of the matter until his arrival home, Saturday, when the affairs were adjusted and the garage reopened. He is figuring on opening a garage alone within the next few days. He will continue to handle the Maxwell car.

STINGING REBUKE GIVEN COMMITTEE

Which Suggested Use of Foreign Vessels for Taft Trip.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 14.—What was evidently intended to be a stinging rebuke to the New Orleans Taft reception committee which asked permission to use foreign vessels here during the reception to President Taft and delegates to the waterway convention, was received in a letter today from the secretary of commerce and labor. It says in part:

"It is reluctant to believe that at our principal gulf port American shipping has so dwindled that to enable the president of the United States and a relatively small body of representative Americans to spend a few hours on the greatest American river with a view to its improvement, they must make the trip under a foreign flag."

DANGER SIGNAL WAVED BY HILL

Noted Railroader Says Country Needs More Farmers.

WILL SOON CEASE TO EXPORT GRAIN

So Great Is the Growth of Population.

Comptroller of the Currency Tells Bankers in Convention at Chicago That Best Guaranty of Deposits Is Thorough Cooperation of His Department, His Examiners and Bank Officials.

Chicago, Sept. 15 -At the session of the American Bankers' association James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern railroad, made the prediction that the United States may soon cease to be an exporter of breadstuff.

"The idea that we feed the world is being corrected," said Mr. Hill. "And unless we can increase the agricultural population and their product the question of a source of food supply at home will soon supersede the question of a market abroad."

This possible condition the speaker laid to the increased tendency of the rural population to forsake the fields and agricultural pursuits for city life, and in corroboration of it he cited the decrease in the value of farm lands in the eastern states and contrasted the conditions in European countries with that of the United States.

The words of the railroad magnate were received with deep attention by the delegates, and followed an address by Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency. The comptroller emphasized the necessity of co-operation between the comptroller and the national bank examiners and pointed out that the bank examinations have been raised from perfunctory review to a systematic investigation by trained officials.

Murray on Guaranty Laws.

Referring to the "guaranty" of bank deposits Mr. Murray said: "I believe in just one kind of guaranty of deposits: I believe in the guaranty which comes from the comptroller of the currency, doing his duty under the law, from the bank examiners doing their duty and from the executive officers and directors of the bank doing their full duty. That is practicable and does not cost the banks an extra dollar, nor permit depositors to lose a dollar."

In his annual address President George M. Reynolds declared in favor of a central bank, with a capitalization of not less than $100,000,000, as a means of avoiding financial disturbances similar to the panic of 1907.

A pause in the regular program of the day was made to permit Speaker Cannon to address the bankers, and later the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, showing the bankers' association in point of membership and financial standing to be in excellent condition.

No regular sessions are being held today, the time being given over to the trust section and its deliberations.

FLOATING IN TUSCARAWAS

The Body of Miss Florence Weber Is Found.

MYSTERY ENSHROUDS DEATH OF THE GIRL

Is Missing from Home Since Monday Night.

Gets a Call Over the Telephone, for Which She Appears To Be Listening, Answers Quickly, Appears Happy Over the Information She Receives, and, Saying She Will Soon Be Back, Leaves Home.

Canal Dover, O., Sept. 15.—Mystery surrounds the death of Miss Florence Weber, twenty, the daughter of John Weber, foreman of the Wagner Lumber company, whose body was found today in the Tuscarawas river.

The girl's father declared he believed Miss Weber had been murdered and thrown into the river. Undertaker B. B. Farris, who took charge of the body, said he had found on it bruises which might have been inflicted in an attack.

Coroner Romig was notified at New Philadelphia, and immediately started to Canal Dover to make a post-mortem examination. Undertaker Farris denied permission to view the body until the arrival of the coroner.

Miss Weber disappeared Monday night. Her father said he believed she left home in response to a telephone call which was received about 7 o'clock.

Expecting Telephone Call.

"Florence seemed to be expecting a telephone call during supper time," Weber said. "When the telephone rang, she ran to it and cried: 'Hello, there!' She did not call out a name, so I do not know whether it was a man or a woman with whom she talked.

"She seemed pleased with whatever message she received, though, and she put on her hat, saying she was going out for a little while, but would be back soon. We thought nothing of this."

Weber refused to consider the theory that his daughter might have committed suicide.

"She was perfectly happy," Weber said. "She had nothing to worry her. As far as I know, she was not receiving the attentions of any young man, and was wrapped up in her girl friends."

Miss Weber had worked as an operator in the Canal Dover telephone exchange. She went to Cleveland, June 1, to accept a position at a higher salary at the Cuyahoga Telephone company. She worked there about two months and then resigned, finding the work too hard.

PRESIDENT FINDS CHARGES UNTRUE

Albany, N. Y., Sept 16 - A voluminous document, in which President Taft announces his findings upon charges against the conduct of the interior department of the government by L. R. Glavis, chief of the field division of the general land office, in connection with the Cunningham coal land claims in Alaska, exonerating Secretary Ballinger of the interior department and observing that Mr. Glavis' case embraced only "shreds of suspicion without substantial evidence," was made public here.

The president grants Secretary Ballinger's request for authority to dismiss Mr. Glavis from the service of the government "for unjustly impeaching the official integrity of his superior officer" and takes occasion to review evidence in the so-called "water power trust" and other cases to refute the charges that the secretary of interior is out of sympathy with the policy of the administration in favor of the conservation of natural resources.

In accordance with the authority given him by President Taft, Secretary Ballinger, of the interior department today directed the dismissal from the public service of L. R. Glavis, chief of the field division of the general land office, with headquarters at Seattle, Washington.

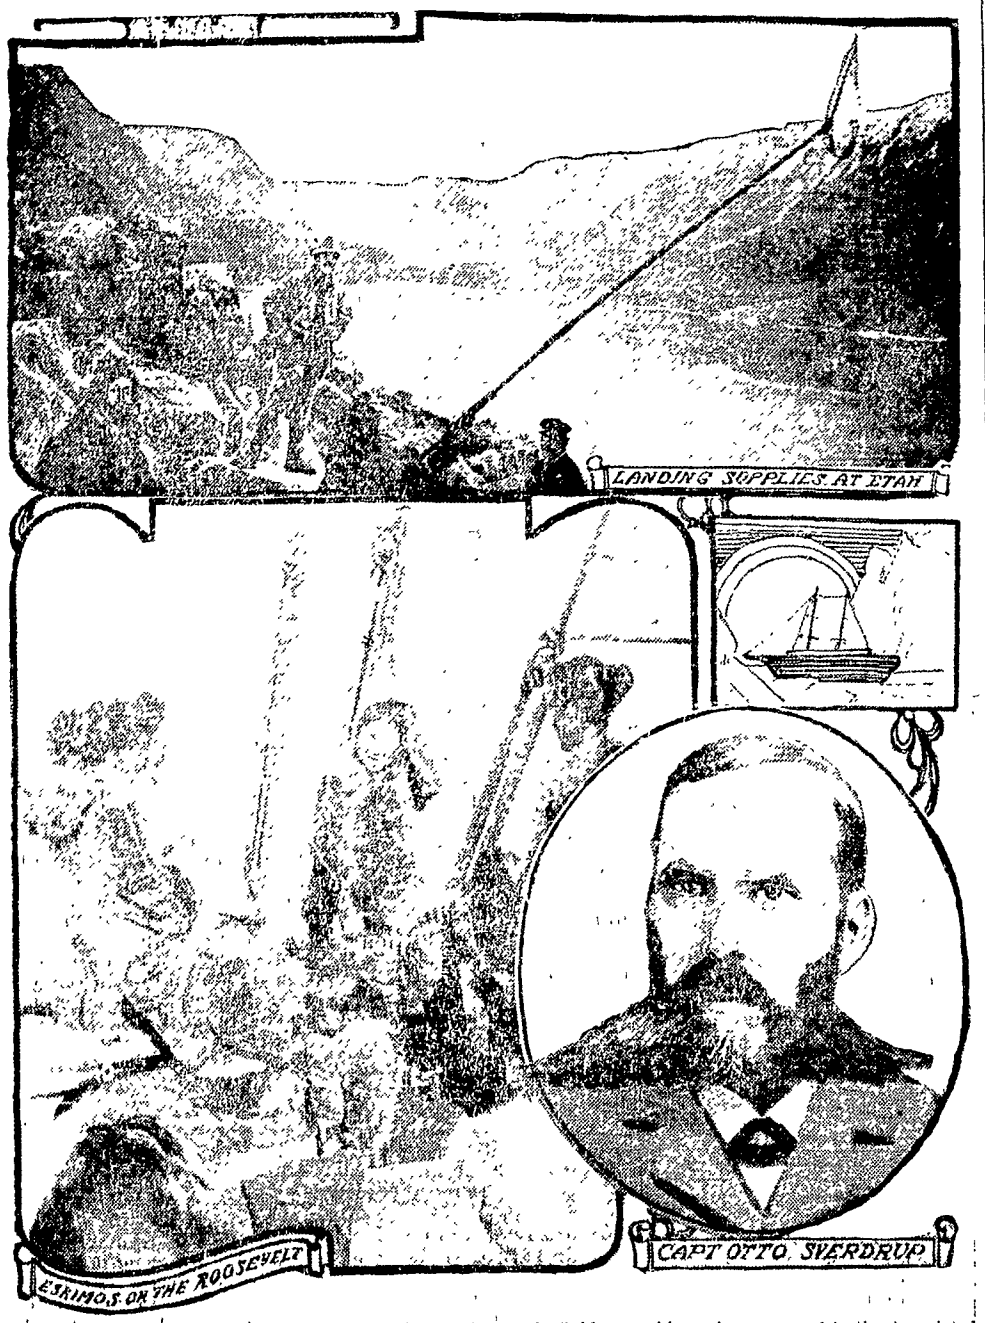
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

SCENES OF PEARY POLE EXPEDITION; DANISH EXPERT WHO UPHOLDS COOK



Commander Peary's telegrams to his wife, to Herbert L. Bridgman, his spokesman, and to the Associated Press open wide the breach of controversy with Dr. Cook. Peary positively asserts that Cook did not get anywhere near the pole; that Eskimos declare the Brooklyn explorer never got out of sight of land. Cook readily accepted Peary's report of having reached the pole, but his supporters bitterly denounce Peary for attempting to discredit Cook. So enthusiastic are Peary's followers that they are already urging that he be made a rear admiral. The men who will finally be the best witnesses are Harry Whitney, the Connecticut hunter, who saw both parties at Etah, and Rudolph Francke, who was the last man to see Cook before his dash for the pole. Francke also met Peary at Etah when the latter was on his way up, and he declares that Peary was greatly disturbed when he learned that Cook had preceded him to the pole. When Cook heard that Peary had thrown down the gage he cut short his stay in Copenhagen and started for New York. Peary himself is making all haste to reach American soil. Captain Otto Sverdrup, the Danish explorer, who met Peary in the Arctic zone some years ago, is a stanch supporter of Cook and insists that there can be no ground for doubt that Cook did just what he says he did.

MAY TAKE OVER WESTERN UNION

Rumors as to a Sale of Telegraph Stock.

GEORGE J. GOULD GETS NICE OFFERS

American Company Is After the Property.

The Company Puts in a Strong Bid for the Holdings of the Russell Sage Estate—The Gigantic Merger Is Expected in Wall Street. Telephone and Telegraph Combine of the Greatest Importance.

New York, Sept 15 The New York News bureau is authority for the statement that considerable progress is being made toward a deal that will involve the Western Union Telegraph company and the American Telephone & Telegraph company.

For some months according to this news agency, there have been persistent rumors that the American Telephone & Telegraph company would take over the Western Union, and it is known that these reports have had some foundation.

The further rise in the stock in the past few days is said to have been occasioned by the further rumor that the deal had already been concluded, but which in fact it is doubted if the merger has already been accomplished. It is known that the American company is anxious to gain control of the Western Union and negotiations have been on for some time but failed because terms could not be agreed upon.

Lately these negotiations have been resumed, the American company desiring to secure the franchises and rights-of-way of the Western Union.

Ever since George J. Gould returned from Europe there have been persistent rumors that there had been splendid offers made him for his stock in Western Union, and the American company has already put in a strong bid for the Western Union stock that has been offered in the open market.

This report, coming as it does from the Wall street agency, is regarded as fairly authoritative, and it would not surprise financiers to hear that the gigantic merger had been completed.

AMERICAN MAID NOW A PRINCESS

Miss Anita Stewart, of New York City,

WEDS PRETENDER TO PORTUGUESE THRONE

Becoming the Princess de Braganza by Marriage.

The Wedding Ceremony Is Performed by the Bishop of Aberdeen in the Chapel of St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic Church, Dingwall. First Royal Wedding in Scotland Since Days of Mary.

Dingwall, Scotland, Sept. 15.—Another American heiress joined the ranks of the European nobility at noon today, when Miss Anita Stewart, daughter of Mrs. James Henry Smith, was married to the Prince De Braganza, son of the pretender to the Portuguese throne.

It was the first "royal wedding" celebrated in Scotland since the days of Mary, queen of Scots, and the little St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic church, where the nuptials were celebrated, was the scene of its most historic functions.

Sixty Seaforth Highlanders piped the music for the wedding. For the prince the Austrian anthem was played, and when the bride entered, the shrill notes of the "Star Spangled Banner" greeted the audience. The Highlanders also played the Mendelssohn wedding march as the bride, on the arm of her brother, William Rhinelander Stewart, walked to the bridal altar.

The prince looked imposing in a Maltese uniform of brilliant scarlet, heavily decorated with gold. The bride wore an underdress of embroidered mousseline de soie, with a court train of embroidered satin.

Her Only Ornament.

Her only ornament was the gift of the bridegroom, a family heirloom in the shape of a jewel of two diamond and sapphire feathers, which for 200 years was among the crown jewels of Portugal.

The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Aberdeen, and the chapel was crowded by a distinguished group of friends and relatives from the United States, Austria, Spain and Portugal. Among the notables present were the Duke and Duchess of Braganza, the prince's father and stepmother; Archduchess Maria Theresa of Austria; Count Albert Czecknies, who specially represented Emperor Franz Josef; fourteen Austrian and Portuguese princes and princesses, all aunts, stepsisters and brothers of the bridegroom; Mrs. Bradley Martin and Mrs. Anthony Drexel, aunt of the bride, with her three children.

The wedding party motored from Tulloch castle, the temporary home of Mrs. Smith, to the church. The service was brief and within fifteen minutes from the time Miss Stewart entered the chapel, she emerged the Princess de Braganza, a title that may later be dropped for that of the Duchess of Vizeau.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at Tulloch castle, after which the couple departed for the continent on a honeymoon.

Created a Princess.

Among the wedding presents, the total value of which was several hundred thousand dollars, was the patent from Emperor Franz Josef, creating the bride a princess in her own right.

This was not intended by the emperor as a wedding present, but the bride so cherishes it.

There were half a dozen chests of silver gifts, many of the pieces hundreds of years old and almost priceless. The most elaborate of the presents, however, were those from the American friends of the bride.

The Prince de Braganza is the eldest son of Don Miguel, duke of Braganza, and according to the Gaelic law, the legitimate heir to the throne of Portugal. The Gaelic law isn't in effect in Portugal now, however, and the duke recently resigned his claim to the crown as did the prince. He is now an Austrian subject and owns vast estates which Prince Miguel will inherit.

Met Last April.

The new princess, who is twenty-four years old, met the prince in Paris last April. With characteristic impetuosity, the prince began almost immediately to pay court to the fair American, who had already made many social conquests in London and the continent. When the London season opened, he followed her there. He never missed an opportunity to be with her and it was evident from the first that the prince had at last been smitten hard. On July 8, Mrs. Smith gave her final social function in London. It was a big affair and society had an inkling of the trend of events by witnessing the prince in almost constant attendance upon the daughter of the hostess. The next day, the Austrian embassy announced the engagement of Miss Stewart and the prince.

Mrs. Smith is understood to have cleared up the debts of the prince, which amounted to many thousands of dollars, and to have settled close to a million dollars upon him.

A DARING FLIGHT ACROSS ADRIATIC

Precedes the Arrest of Three Italians in Austria.

Rome, Sept. 15.—Commander Borsalino, of the Italian navy, and Signors Usuelli and Nicoli, two of the best-known aeronauts in Italy, were arrested in Austria today at the completion of one of the most daring balloon flights on record, a flight from Venice across the Adriatic sea to Austria.

Details of the arrest have not been received, but it is presumed they are charged with being military spies. The arrest will be thoroughly investigated, and it is possible it may lead to international complications. The three aeronauts had long contemplated a trip across the Adriatic and they made the ascent at Venice when the wind was blowing straight to sea. The flight covered more that 100 miles.

CLARK TAKES DEADLY DRUG

While He Is Being Showered with Confetti,

AND SINKS TO KNEES AND DIES

While Youths Continue Their Merry Pranks.

Business and Heart Failure Leads a Once-Wealthy New Yorker To Take Poison in Cafe of the Hotel Prince George, New York City, at an Early Hour This Morning. Leaves a Letter.

New York, Sept. 15.—David W. Clark, once a man of wealth, drank poison in the cafe of the Hotel Prince George, No. 14 east Twenty-Eighth street, at 1 o'clock this morning while half a dozen young men just in from the Coney Island Mardi Gras, scattered confetti about in the room and shouted.

Clark, a man of fifty-eight, was formerly a manufacturer of varnish. He lived on Twenty-Sixth street, and was in the nightly habit of getting a midnight lunch at the hotel before retiring. Because of his large tips, the hotel attendants all liked him.

When Clark entered the hotel last night, he had a bellboy bring him some stationery and sat for some time writing, at the same time ordering a bottle of beer and a club sandwich. He poured a small quantity of liquid into the beer, but did not drink it.

"Things have been breaking badly for me of late, but I guess they'll brighten up before long," Clark told the bartender.

Just then two automobiles drove up to the hotel, and a number of young men, laughing and singing, entered the cafe.

Youths Surround Clark.

Hurling confetti and joking with all they passed, the young men surrounded Clark.

"They feel happy; I don't," Clark declared, as he ordered a drink of whisky, into which he poured more of the same liquid he had put into the beer. The men supposed it was medicine. He raised the glass to his lips and rose to his feet. The young men scattered confetti all over him and bound him with paper ribbons. Clark hesitated a second and then drained the glass. It fell from his hand and crashed on the floor. He sank to his knees. The youngsters thought he was playing a part and threw more confetti. Clark plunged forward on his face. Before physicians arrived he was dead.

The letter Clark had written was as follows:

"To the coroner of New York: Have taken cyanide of potash. Reason, business failure, and also failure of health. Please notify my brother, Dr. A. M. Clark, Alder Creek, Oneida county, New York. If he is not at the above address, he can be found at his home in Youngstown, Ohio."

"Please have my body prepared for cremation.

"David W. Clark."

WANTS TO FEEL PUBLIC PULSE

President Explains Object of Trip to Bostonians.

HE PRAISES ALDRICH AS GREAT FINANCIER

He Denounces Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

The Latter Advises the West To Organize Against the East and Pleads for United Country—Says Signs All Point to Era of Great Business Expansion and Warns Against Repetition of Abuses.

Boston, Sept. 15.—President Taft's first public utterance since congress adjourned was made in this city before 2,000 men, representing the combined business interests of Boston. The occasion was a banquet given in Mechanics' hall by the Boston chamber of commerce, and it marked the beginning of the president's 13,000-mile trip through the country. His address follows in part:

"I am on the eve of beginning a journey of 13,000 miles in length, which will enable me to see tens and hundreds of thousands of my fellow citizens, and enable them, I hope, to see me. Occasionally I hear the query why I should start off on such a trip and 'what particular good does it do to anybody?' Well, it certainly is not going to be a pleasure trip, although I shall enjoy it. It will involve much hard work and a great deal of mental effort to think of things to say and to say them simply and clearly, so that they can be understood. On the other hand, it will certainly give me a very much more accurate impression as to the views of the people in the sections which I visit. It will bring closely to me the needs of particular sections, so far as national legislation and executive action are concerned; and I believe it will make me a wiser man and a better public officer.

Outlines His Talk.

"Your chairman has made some reference to a number of subjects to which the attention of congress may well be directed. In the first place, there is the monetary situation. While it is probable that the Vreeland bill, passed by the last congress, would aid us in case of another financial crash, it is certain that our banking and monetary system is a patched up affair which satisfies nobody, and least of all those who are clear-headed and have a knowledge of what a financial system should be. The matter has been referred by congress to a monetary commission, which has been studying with much interest and enthusiasm the financial and banking systems of the great governments of Europe, and has embodied and will soon publish in interesting and attractive form the best accounts of the financial systems of the world. It is quite apparent from the statements of Mr. Vreeland and from the conversations of Mr. Aldrich that the trend of minds of the monetary commission is toward some sort of arrangement for a central bank of issue, which shall control the reserve and exercise a power to meet and control the casual stringency which from time to time will come in the circulating medium of the country and the world. Mr. Aldrich states that there are two indispensable requirements in any plan to be adopted involving a central bank of issue. The one is that the control of the monetary system shall be kept from Wall street influences, and the other that it shall not be manipulated for political purposes. These are two principles to which we can all subscribe.

Aldrich to Take Stump.

"I am told that Mr. Aldrich will 'swing around the circle' in the present fall, and will lecture in many of the cities of the middle west on the defects and needs of our monetary system. I can not too strongly approve of this proposal. Mr. Aldrich, who is the leader of the senate, and certainly one of the ablest statesmen in financial matters in either house, has been regarded with deep suspicion by many people, especially in the west. If, with his clear-cut ideas and simple but effective style of speaking, he makes apparent to the western people what I believe to be his earnest desire to aid the people and to crown his political career by the preparation and passage of a bill which shall give us a sound and safe monetary and banking system, it would be a long step toward removing the political obstacles to a proper solution of the question.

"I am not going to discuss the merits and demerits of the new tariff bill with you. I shall have often to refer to that before my journey is ended, and I must save something for other audiences. Suffice it to say that the passage of the tariff bill has removed a disturbing element in business.s

"During Mr. Roosevelt's administration we were all struck with the necessity for reform in business methods, for more scrupulous attention to the conduct of business in accordance with law, and for the necessity of simplifying the law in such a way as to make it clear to corporate managers what they can do and what they can not do.

"We are, I believe, unless all signs fail, on the eve of another great business expansion, an era of prosperity. Indeed, it is already here in many branches of business. The hum of prosperity and the ecstacy of great profits are likely to dull out interest in these reforms and to lead us back again to the old abuses unless we insist upon legislation which shall clinch and enforce those standards by positive law. Nothing revolutionary, nothing disturbing to legitimate business is needed; but we must set the marks clear in the statutes by which the lines can be drawn upon which all business shall proceed, and must have it understood by means of prompt prosecution and punishment that the law is for all.

"Still the world is making progress—our country is making progress. Occasionally one hears a note like that of Governor Johnson, denouncing the east and calling upon the west to organize in a sectional way against east, because the east is deriving more benefit from the governmental policy than the west and at the expense of the west. It is difficult for one to treat such an appeal seriously. Throughout the country there is free trade of the freest character, and due to this the prosperity of the west, especially the agricultural west, is even more pronounced than that of the east. Moreover, the east is too close to the Pacific coast, too close to the middle west, too close to the Rocky mountains, because all the people of these western stretches have eastern ancestry and eastern associations and eastern connections, and because they have eastern capital with which their sections have largely been built up and because they are too much assisted by eastern markets in enhancing the prices which their products bring, to make such an attempt at sectionalism successful.

"And now, my friends and fellow citizens, as I take my departure for the west, I feel that I carry from you to every citizen and inhabitant of the United States whom I shall meet the cordial greetings of New England and the east, your congratulations on the prospective prosperity in the whole country and an earnest wish that the national government shall be conducted in such a way as to insure peace with all the nations of the world and tranquillity and prosperity at home, growing out of the conduct of business on lines of commercial integrity and within the law which forbids the organization and maintenance of monopolies and the systematic suppression of competition. Things are not perfect, but we have made progress. We have a right to be optimistic and believe that further progress is likely; that conditions are improving and that we may continue to maintain for all citizens of the country that equality of opportunity which it is the highest object of a well conducted government to preserve."

The president left on his special train for Chicago at 10 o'clock this morning.

REORGANIZING THE FORCE OF NURSES

Result of Scalding to Death of a Paralytic.

NURSE RESPONSIBLE GETS HIS DISCHARGE

General W. R. Burnett Intends To See That More Care Is Taken in the Nursing of Patients in Home for Soldiers and Sailors at Sandusky City—Coroner's Verdict.

Sandusky, O., Sept. 15.—General W. R. Burnett, commandant of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors' home at Sandusky, is reorganizing the force of nurses at the hospital as the result of Joseph Berry, a paralytic civil war veteran, being scalded to death in a bath tub.

Surgeon General John T. Haynes has announced that Benjamin Weaver, a night nurse who left Berry in the fatal bath, has been discharged and that every effort is being made to determine whether others also were responsible.

Coroner B. F. Southwick stated that he will render a verdict of accidental death. He said it was his opinion that the veteran himself turned on the hot water and was unable to shut it off again or escape from the tub on account of his being paralyzed.

Every means was taken by the authorities at the home to keep the affair from becoming public and it was twelve hours after Berry's death before the case was reported to the coroner.

Coroner Southwick learned that Weaver was giving Berry, sixty, and a helpless paralytic for over twenty years, a bath about 5 o'clock Saturday morning when the relief shift of nurses reported for duty. Weaver left Berry in the tub in the belief, he said, that one of the relief nurses would finish bathing him.

No one went to attend Berry, however, and the water in the tub became cold. Then the aged soldier turned on the hot tap, and instantly the tub was filled with scalding water from which he could not escape. When found he was dying.

Canton Man Blames Whisky for His Troubles.

Wilbur Whitacre Claims That He Was Drunk Both Times He Married—The Ohio State Codifiers May Be Fired—Columbus Porch Climber Admits Many Burglaries. Honor to McKinley.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 15.—After making 18 attempts at suicide in the past four years, Philip Reuckner has finally succeeded in passing to the great beyond. He died from the effects of a broken skull suffered about a week ago, when he made three attempts to kill himself. Reuckner often was asked why he sought to end his life, and usually told inquirers that it was none of their business. He said when he made his last three attempts in one day that it was "too hot to live." Last winter, when he made four attempts in one day, he said it was "too cold to live."

Blames Whisky For Troubles.

Canton, O., Sept. 15.—"I was drunk both times that I was married," declared Wilbur Whitacre, who is locked up in the city jail on the charge of bigamy. Whitacre and Miss Minnie Yussem, 18, daughter of William Yussem, were married a week ago, and now the bride declares her husband has left her. Whitacre said that Mrs. Lawrence Carnes of Salem was formerly his wife, but that he understood she had secured a divorce and remarried.

Codifiers May Be Fired.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 15.—The entire work of the commission appointed in 1906 to codify the laws of Ohio may be repudiated and the commission peremptorily discharged by the general assembly which meets in regular session Jan. 1. Preliminary reports made by the commission have brought charges from the most conspicuous members of the legislature that the meaning of the statutes have been changed in a dangerous as well as unwarranted manner.

Columbus, O. Sept. 15.—McKinley Harris, 14, alleged porch climber and diamond thief, who has been held at the Juvenile Detention home for several days, was taken to Barnesville by Marshal Petticord of that place, after he had confessed to Detective Porter and Marshal Petticord that he had "pulled off several jobs of house robbery in Barnesville and Utica. Detective Porter recovered five diamond rings and money which the boy had stolen.

A distinguished company gathered in the magnificent hall where a dinner was tendered the aviator by the British Aeroplane club, in recognition of his flight across the English channel.

SUPPOSED TO BE DEMENTED

Mrs. Julius Tripp Is Pumped Full of Lead.

She Is Also Slashed with Knife by Mrs. Jacob Silvers, to Whom She Had Given a Home When the Latter Was Deserted by Her Husband—Murderess Lives Long Enough To Make Confession.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Mrs. Julius Tripp of this city was shot and killed by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jacob Silvers, formerly of New York. Mrs. Silvers then committed suicide by firing two bullets into her own body.

Mrs. Tripp was found on the floor when the house was entered, with 10 bullet wounds and one knife wound in her body. Mrs. Silvers died at a hospital several hours later. Before she died she recovered consciousness and made the statement that she had killed Mrs. Tripp and then committed suicide. The police were unable to get a full and connected statement from Mrs. Silvers, as she became unconscious while being questioned and died before making a complete statement.

Mrs. Silvers had a bullet wound in her chest and another in her forehead. It was at first thought the wound in her forehead was made with a knife, but later it was found that a bullet had glanced off the frontal bone. Mrs. Silvers was believed to be mentally unbalanced, and her husband is said to have left her about three months ago for that reason. It is believed she murdered Mrs. Tripp and took her own life because of a quarrel over the division of the household duties. Mrs. Tripp invited Mrs. Silvers to make her home with the Tripps after her husband had left her. Mrs. Silvers thought she should be treated as a guest, while Mrs. Tripp insisted that she do her share of the housework.

E. H. HARRIMAN'S CHURCH, HIS BIRTHPLACE AND THREE PROMINENT MEN AT FUNERAL

Only members of the family and a few close personal friends were bidden to the funeral of Edward H. Harriman at Arden, New York, on Sunday afternoon, September 12. Simplicity was the keynote of the funeral. The service was conducted by Bishop Doane, of Albany, and Archdeacon Nelson, of New York City. They were assisted by the Rev. D. J. Holmes McGuinnis, rector of St. John's church at Arden and spiritual adviser to the Harriman family. There was a family service at 10 o'clock in the morning at Arden house, a memorial service in St. John's church at 11 o'clock and the funeral service at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Harriman was buried in the little churchyard beside the chapel. The active pallbearers were all men employed on the estate. The intimate friends present included Judge Lovett, Jacob Schiff and a number of Mr. Harriman's other closest business associates. This group of pictures shows the famous financier's birthplace and the little church at Arden beside which his body rests. He was born in the rectory of St. George's church at Hempstead, New York, his father at the time of his birth being the rector of the church. The old house, which is still standing, was built in 1793.

TO BE KNOWN AS THE TARIFF BOARD

Will Be the Tariff Advisers of President Taft.

Washington, Sept. 16.—President Taft's advisers on the tariff will be known as the "tariff board." This official designation was today decided upon by the treasury department as better suited than "commission" by which name the body has been termed ever since its creation by the new tariff law.

A preliminary meeting of the board will be held here next week. Chairman Henry C. Emerson, who resigned as professor of political economy at Yale to head the board, is now arranging for this meeting with his colleagues, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds, and Alvin H. Sanders, of Chicago.

FARMERS KILLED IN STREET DUEL

Both Men Dead Five Minutes After the Affray.

Neosho, Mo., Sept. 16.—Henry Estes, a wealthy farmer, and Ben Marshall, a member of one of the oldest families in the country, quarreled on the streets of Newtonia, Wednesday, drew their revolvers, fired at each other and were both killed. They met by chance on the streets and talked a few minutes before the quarrel began. The shooting followed an altercation that lasted only a few minutes.

Both men were dead within five minutes after the shots were fired, and no one knew what the quarrel was about.

LAST STAGE OF CONSTRUCTION

Of Great River Tunnel at Detroit Is Begun Wednesday.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 16.—The last stage of the construction of the great Detroit river tunnel, the completion of which will mark an epoch in transcontinental travel over the northern route, was begun Wednesday. The last section of the big double tube was sunk, successfully connected up with the others already laid, and the work of pumping out the whole length began. The pumping will take about two weeks, after which the concrete lining will be put in. The first section of the tunnel was laid October 3, 1907.

JAMES THATCHER DIES IN HOSPITAL

Death Comes as Result of Operation in Toledo.

James Thatcher, sixty-five years old, a member of the Grand Army post at LaRue, died as a result of an operation for a tumor in a hospital at Toledo, Wednesday evening. He was taken to Toledo, last Sunday.

This morning, Mrs. H. C. Ward, a daughter, residing on Pies avenue, received a telegram informing her of his death. The remains were brought here and will be taken to Green Camp for interment. Rev. J. A. Sutton, of LaRue, will officiate at the funeral services, which will be held at Green Camp, Sunday.

PERFECT REPLICA OF THE FULTON STEAMBOAT

Little Steamer Moves Five Miles an Hour.

AN UPRIGHT ENGINE MOVES THE VESSEL

The Boat Contains an Original Invention To Prevent the Paddle Wheels from Stopping on "Center"—A Wraith of Century Gone in Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

New York, Sept. 15.—The veil of a hundred years lifted Tuesday and from down the waters of the Kill Von Kull there steamed a wraith of the past century, a replica of "Robert Fulton's folly," the little steamer, Clermont, which is to take a leading part in the Hudson-Fulton celebration the latter part of this month.

America, usually the most progressive of the nations, has turned backward the hands of time and navigation one century.

The Clermont steamed slowly, exactly as did her predecessor. Not more than five miles an hour could she make, for the engines in the 1909 Clermont are, as nearly as possible, a duplicate of the engines of the original. They take up half the boat. The boiler is upright and there are two big and two little cog wheels. The smaller cog wheels run the balance wheels on the outside of the boat, which were intended to prevent the padle wheels from being stopped on "center." Her small unprotected paddle wheels attracted attention. They had eight blades, compared to the hundred or more in her modern day progeny.

In the Hudson-Fulton celebration she will be manned by a crew dressed exactly as the crew of the first Clermont, and her passengers will be attired as the passengers of a century ago.

But even beyond the century in the celebration will be the replica of the Half Moon, from whose high poop decks Henry Hudson steered his courageous way up the Hudson some centuries before.

NEGRO HELPS PLANT FLAGS

Peary's Lieutenant Gives Account of Discovery.

FIRST LOCATION PROVES WRONG

Eskimos Unite in Cheering Stars and Stripes

As Flag Is Unfurled at the Top of the World and Are Awarded for Sentiment by an Extra Allowance of Food—Hanson Denies Charge That He Did Not Accompany Peary to the Pole.

Battle Harbor, Labrador, Sept. 16.—(By Wireless.)—Matthew Henson, Commander Peary's colored lieutenant, and the only other civilized man, according to Peary, who ever reached the pole, is proud of his achievement and never tires of telling how "we hoisted the stars and stripes twice at the north pole."

To the Associated Press Henson gave an account of the one night and two days he and Commander Peary and four Eskimos camped at 90 degrees north latitude. Henson personally assisted in raising the American flag and he led the Eskimos in the cheers and extra cheer for "old glory" in the Eskimo tongue.

"We arrived at the pole just before noon, April 6, the party consisting of the commander, myself, four Eskimos and 36 dogs, divided into two detachments, equal in number, and headed respectively by Commander Peary and myself. We had left the last supporting party at 87 degrees 48 minutes, where we separated from Captain Bartlett, who was photographed by the commander. Captain Bartlett regretted that he did not have a British flag to erect on the ice at this spot, so that the photograph might show this as the farthest north to which the banner of Britain had been advanced.

"We figured out the distance pretty closely and did not go beyond the pole. The flags were up about midday, April 7, and were not moved until late that evening. The haze had cleared away early but we waited some hours to make observations.

Moved From First Position.

"When we first raised the American flag its position was behind the igloos, which, according to our initial observations, was the position of the pole, but on taking subsequent observations the stars and stripes were moved and placed 150 yards west of the first position, the difference in the observations being due perhaps to moving ice.

"When the flag was placed Commander Peary exclaimed in English: 'We will plant the stars and stripes at the north pole.' In the native language I proposed three cheers, which were given in the Eskimos' own tongue. Commander Peary shook hands all around and we had a more liberal dinner than usual, each man eating as much as he pleased. The Eskimos danced about and showed great pleasure that the pole at last was reached. For years the Eskimos had been trying to reach that spot, but it was always with them 'tiquelgh,' which translated means 'get so far and no closer.' They exclaimed in a chorus, 'Ting nelga timah ketisher,' meaning 'we have got there at last.'"

Henson, who reached the farthest north with Peary three years ago, said that conditions were about the same at the pole as elsewhere in the Arctic circle. All was a solid sea of ice with a two-foot lead of open water two miles from the pole.

Continuing his story, Henson said: "The report is absolutely untrue that I did not go to the pole. I went the whole distance, side by side with the commander, and just as far as he did."

Peary Breaks Silence.

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 16.—Mrs. Robert E. Peary received the following telegram from her husband at Battle Harbor, Labrador: "Can not arrive before end of week."

It is hardly expected here that the Roosevelt will reach Sydney before the early part of next week. She makes but five knots an hour and she probably would be further delayed by stormy weather. It is clear that Commander Peary is going to stick to the Roosevelt and not take advantage of any offer made him to come down from Battle Harbor on another vessel. Sydney is waiting with unabated interest to welcome the explorer, and the preparations for his entertainment are all completed.

Wants South Pole Too.

St. Johns, N. F., Sept. 16.—The mail boat from Labrador, which arrived at St. Johns, reports that Commander Peary and Captain Bartlett have already settled on an expedition to the south pole. They have on board the Roosevelt furs, sledges and other equipment necessary for such an expedition.

Nailing the stars and stripes to the pole, it may develop, will prove to be play to Peary alongside nailing alleged lies.

Canada claims the continent of North America from the United States boundary line to the pole and all the islands adjacent thereto. Of all governments and colonies Canada must go down as the James K. Jones.

Men were having for the summit of the world, one way or another, when Lord Byron lived and gave the soul of immortal genius to his verses. We commend these to the Dr. Cooks in every day life whose accomplishments stir doubt and envy:

"He who ascends to mountaintops shall find
The loftiest peaks most wrapt in clouds and snow;
He who surpasses or subdues mankind
Must look down on the hate of those below."

President Taft likes apple pie and corn bread. All the more one learns of that man, all the better one is bound to like him.

The New York Sun declares the needed leader for Democracy in 1912 is not in sight. The Sun has evidently not turned its calculating optics on the capitol of Ohio.

It is apparent that the Union Pacific people labor under the impression that it is just as well to start out by putting two men at the job of filling Harriman's shoes.

Dr. Mary Walker says there is but one cure for tuberculosis, and that is tobacco smoke. We have never much inclined to coddle up to Dr. Mary heretofore, but we do say now that she prescribes a remedy sometimes very agreeable to take.

The fellow who suggests that former President Roosevelt's dignity will prevent him from superintending the Panama canal job, for some reason reminds us of one of those people who invariably finds it necessary to offer an apology for working. In a word, he makes us tired.

If you look about, it will surprise you to note how many of our agriculturalist friends have moved to town to take advantage of the splendid vegetables and farm produce offered by the local market.

It's more or less hard to understand why the country-at-large admits Peary's veracity beyond all question and at the same time admits that Dr. Cook has him faded to the limit in the matter of courtesy and gentility. The three are qualities which one would naturally expect to see going hand in hand.

A THROBBING KANSAN SEES THINGS ABROAD.

William Allen White, who discovered what was the matter with Kansas, and by so doing won a place, more or less secure, in the annals of fame, has been spending the summer in Europe. We are glad of it. Before he went away William Allen had degenerated into a moderately savage muckraker and according to his more recent magazine articles, had determined that as a people we were in a pretty bad way. He has come back a better, a wiser, and, of course, a more hopeful man. He cannot say that way in Kansas, but for the time being he is sane, patriotic and optimistic.

But the red-haired sage of the Kaw Valley returns with a warning of dread portent to his countrymen, who are too poor or too busy to go to Europe. He kept his eyes open as much as he dared while scorching and being scorched around Paris, and he has the following to say about the fashions feminine which are headed this way, and he says it boldly in editorial correspondence to the Emporia Gazette, which he owns and in which he prints his real heart-throbs:

"In this connection it should be stated that a new style of dress has appeared in Europe. It is a kind of compromise between a kimono and a shift, so planned to suggest by its Mother Hubbard effect everything that the tight fitting of last year tried to show. The last year's styles were disgraceful enough. These new ones are indecent. Doubtless they will have an unprecedented vogue."

Our lady readers will recognize in the above a genuine "Advance Fashion Hint" and if they cannot design one of the new garments from the description, we have no doubt Mr. White would gladly furnish specification, if requested by letter so to do.

WILLIAM E. SCOFIELD APPOINTED TO THE BENCH

Attorney William E. Scofield has been appointed to the vacancy on the common pleas bench made by the death of Judge Boston G. Young, and a more satisfactory appointment can not be imagined. Governor Harmon has picked the best and pleased the most. The governor had a strong array of good men to choose from, counting receptive with active candidates, and it disparages none of the others to say the choice fell upon the leader of the Marion bar. Judge Scofield's appointment is most fitting, however, for other reasons than his notabue success as a lawyer. Of the available candidates from Marion, Mr. Scofield is the oldest in years and much the oldest in experience at the bar. He will be fifty years old during his first year of service on the bench, the ideal age to combine the wisdom and prudence of experience in directing the activities of a trained and busy mind and a ready intellect. For one of his years, Judge Scofield has an exceptional record at practice—twenty-eight years of ever-growing success. He began when he attained his legal majority, and has ascended to the eminence of high professional success, and stands today as one of the great lawyers of Ohio. More, Judge Scofield has the judicial temperament—the even poise, the deliberate reasoning, the analytical tendency, and the breadth of mind to be a great and just judge. He has practiced law from every reputable angle, and succeeded at them all, until he knows the essential point of view. As a citizen he is a man of affairs, and one of the finest fellows in the world. These qualifications are not harmful to a good judge.

He is a Democrat, of course. We suppose he always will, be. The miracle of saving a Democrat of the old school has never been recorded in these parts, but we are not concerned about that. This much we may predict at the beginning of his judicial career: Judge Scofield will not only take none of his political prejudices to the bench, but he understands the ethics that go with the ermine, and will avoid the criticism that too many on the common pleas bench have incited.

A good many have wondered that Mr. Scofield is willing to accept the judgeship, knowing that his professional income is far in excess of the rather modest salary on the bench. The Star thinks it understands. Judge Scofield belongs to the class of men who do not measure all human achievements by the dollars earned and accumulated. He had won his spurs at the bar in nearly thirty years of practice. The honor of the bench and capable service in that capacity appeals to the good lawyer. It is the ambition of most men in the legal profession. Judge Scofield's appointment, in all reasonable probability, means thirteen years on the common pleas bench, for election to the full terms is sure to follow. In that time he may make a record of vastly greater worth to him than ten times the money addition to a competence already earned. Perhaps he will go higher. Men of his capacity, who so readily win the hearts of men, usually do. May the Judge long and honorably preside.

The Star congratulates Governor Harmon, the bar and the people of the second sub-division of the Tenth judicial district on the appointment of Judge Scofield.

RECALLING GRATITUDE OF PATRICK LANNON

Years ago, when Dr. Galley was mayor and Patrick Lannon was the veteran of the police force, the mayor and chief patrolman landed simultaneously at the city building and Lannon flung open the windows, early on a beautiful June day, just as the sunshine burst anew after a glorious morning rain. The grass was green, the trees rich in verdure, a dozen growing gardens caught the sweep of one's eye from the city building, the air was pure and genial and the earth beautifully refreshed, all abounding in the glories of a summer morning, after a needed and ample shower. Lannon drank in the scene, then turned familiarly to his superior and out of the simplicity and generosity and reverence of his heart, said:

"Doc, God is good."

There is no special significance to the recalling of this incident, except that it is pleasant to recall a fine old Irishman of the Lannon type, who reached the summit of his ambition on the police force, and served with fidelity and conscience, and the attending efficiency, but we have been thinking how the reverent Lannons of this section ought to be inspired to gratitude this year. City and county have never been so beautiful throughout a glorious summer. Farm and garden have yielded their abundance in the harvests thus far made, and the passing weather is exactly suited to the great corn crop that is rapidly hardening into literally golden grain. Even the late replanted corn in the flooded bottom lands is hurrying to safety and will add its wealth to accumulating prosperity. Meanwhile the pastures have been abundant and are still green and inviting. It seems to us that if good old Patrick Lannon were alive today, he would cast a practical and grateful eye over town and country, on this threshold of autumn, and reverently declare:

"Doc, God is good."

Sometimes we reflect that there isn't enough expressed gratitude in this world. Men feel it, perhaps, certainly the inherent trait is not dead in the hearts of men, but they grow careless about giving the utterance. The bounty of providence is not to be denied, and providence is of God. Verily He is good.

These rival polar explorers should realize that there is a large, fleshy gentleman over in Africa who has been waiting patiently for some days now to get another chance at the center of the news stage.

If nothing else worth while is achieved this pole business has beaten our old friend Noah Webster on the spelling of Eskimo. Incidentally the late administration of T. Roosevelt is orthographically vindicated.

Now somebody sets the millennium at 2914. By that time the airship business will be so perfected that denizens of the earth may fly away from trouble on this sphere and try the climate elsewhere. At any rate let's not worry about it. This generation has troubles of its own. However, writing in a just spirit we must say that it is a wise prophet who does his dating over a century in advance. There will be no living memory of the error except the pre-eaters-for-breakfast, which the Logan county correspondent has discovered. They out live Methuselah or the correspondent outlies Ananias.

The art critics are said to speak highly in praise of the beauty of the new $100 bill, which is not so remarkable, come to think of it. A new $100 bill would look mighty good to the most of us.

Judging from universal comment throughout the state, nobody is entirely pleased with the operation of the primary election law excepting the successful candidates.

One of these days we hope Senator La Follette will give up a page or two of the valuable space in his magazine to something or somebody meeting his entire approbation. Of course, it is understood, senator, that an autobiography is barred.

The fair people are considering the offer of a Wyandot aviator to show his aeroplane at the county fair. We hope the board of managers will recall in time that dirigible balloon exhibit of a year or two ago.

Off hand, we assume that the Arkansas editor who is advertising for "a mule with a white nose weighing 700 pounds" is in the freak collection line.

Cook may be an imposter, as Peary claims, but, if so, he is imposing on us in such a refined, gentlemanly way that some of us take more stock in the alleged faker than in the admitted real thing.

It was a woman-hater who declared that the only time a girl took for reflection was that which she spent at her mirror.

PRESIDENT ELIOT ON TRUE DEMOCRACY

"We are all inextricably bound together. Therefore, freedom is not going to be a thing of solitude, or isolation, or individualism; it must be a social thing; in short, must be democracy. What is democracy? It is the cooperation of all sorts and conditions of men united to preserve the rights of the person and the rights of property. The preservation of the rights of the person and the rights of property is the whole structure of civilization, and democracy is the cooperative method of securing those rights.

"We sometimes speak of democracy as if its fundamental doctrine was the equality of men, but there is no such thing as equality among men in any proper sense; because human nature has infinite variety, and the individuals of the race exhibit an inequality which is absolutely and literally infinite. You can not make men and women alike, you can not make two children in the family alike.

"Therefore, democracy would be fighting the facts of nature if it sought to bring about a monotonous equality of men. It never undertook that impossible job. Democracy simply insists upon equal security for all properties, large or small and of whatever sort. The equal rights of persons and of property is the sole sense in which democracy means equality. But democracy does mean cooperation, working together toward those great ends." Ex-President Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard university.

WATER-SOFTENING PLANT IS TO BE INSTALLED HERE

Will Be Up to Date and of Great Capacity.

HALF MILLION GALLONS DAILY

Are Consumed Here by the Water Demands of the Railroads—New Manager of the Union Depot Hotel Comes Here Wednesday from Dayton and Takes Charge.

G. M. Trumbull, assistant general master mechanic of the Erie with headquarters in Jersey City; Dr. Landon, Erie chemist, from Meadville and G. T. Depew, division master mechanic from Galion were in the city Tuesday conferring relative to the installation of a water-softening plant for the Erie at this point. This matter has been up for consideration for some time, and it is evident that the plant will be installed as soon as the officials can decide upon the make. Several propositions are being considered. It is the desire of the company to install a plant of mammoth capacity and one of the most modern manufacture. The plant necessarily will have to be a large one, as there is used here daily between 400,000 and 500,000 gallons of water. Two mammoth iron water tanks will be installed to hold the supply after it has gone through the softening process. Although the location has not been determined, it will probably be that of the old water tank and power-house a short distance west of Kenton avenue. The cost of the new improvement is estimated at about $10,000.

The resignation of Howard J. Barnhart as manager of the Union Depot hotel was effective Wednesday and R. V. Browinski, of Dayton, took over the management for J. P. Breen of Dayton. Mr. Breen came up with the new manager to get him started in the work. Mr. Browinski has been identified with the Breen hotel interests for the last nine years as steward and clerk and is a man of wide experience in the business.

In New York, Wednesday, the directors of the Big Four adopted a resolution which will be submitted to the stockholders at the forthcoming annual meeting, providing for an issue of $20,000,000 worth of bonds, the proceeds to be used to pay for improvements already made, or contemplated. It is understood only $10,000,000 worth of the bonds will be sold at present, the rest remaining in the treasury until needed.

The railroad boys had planned a belling for Mr. and Mrs. E. Paddock, the former a Hocking Valley employe, who was quietly married about two weeks ago and returned Tuesday evening from a honeymoon spent in New York. However "Doc" anticipated the plans and met the "gang" Wednesday with a box of cigars, and everything was lovely.

Charles Sechrist, transfer agent for Wells Fargo & Company's express, is laid up at his home on Blaine avenue as the result of an accident Wednesday afternoon. Sechrist was working Erie passenger, No. 16. He was in the act of moving an apparently heavy box from an express car onto the truck on which he was standing. The box was not as heavy as he anticipated and he was thrown to the brick platform with much force, alighting on his back. He will probably be off duty a few days.

Those who were about the Union station, Wednesday, were witnesses to several interesting meetings between students of the state institution for the deaf and dumb. Many were returning to take up their term's work. Some came in on the Erie, others on the Big Four, while many were on the southbound Hocking Valley trains which the transfer passengers board at this point. That these people enjoyed meeting each other just as well as those who could talk goes without saying. A bystander could tell that some were more advanced in their work than others. The greetings were very cordial. The introduction of new pupils was an interesting spectacle. Probably the most interesting person was Miss Ethel Shepherd, of Lima, a graduate of the institution who is visiting at the C. E. Shepherd home on the Boulevard. Miss Shepherd met every train, and on each train met quite a few she knew. She is quite an adept. Her affliction is a peculiar one. She can talk, but is so afflicted that she cannot hear herself or others, although she can tell readily from the movements of one's lips just what they are saying.

A rumor was current, Wednesday and Thursday, in railroad circles, that an eastern man would succeed Jerome Hostetter as lieutenant of police at this point. A man by the name of Stone came down from the New York division and spent the day with Captain Rausch and Lieutenant Hostetter, but left during the day. As no official order has been issued it is highly probable that no change will be made. Mr. Hostetter was not at his office Thursday, so no confirmation or denial of the report could be obtained.

CIRCUIT COURT CASES ARE BEING CONSIDERED

Some Heard Here and Some at Upper Sandusky.

A NUMBER OF MATTERS HAVE BEEN CONTINUED

Suit of B. F. Adams Against May Summers and Others, on Appeal, Is Dismissed on the Ground That It Should Have Been Carried Up on Error.

The circuit court convened here, Tuesday morning, shortly before 11 o'clock with Judge Silas E. Hurin and Harry W. Kinder, of Findlay, and Michael Donnelly, of Napoleon, on the bench.

The absence of Judge C. H. Norris, of this city, who had sat on the bench for years, was much commented upon by attorneys. Judge Kinder, who succeeded Judge Norris, made a deep impression on the Marion county bar on his first appearance here as a judge of the circuit court.

Judge Donnelly arrived at the court-house by 9 o'clock and talked with the lawyers until the arrival of Judges Hurin and Kinder. He commented on the death of the late Judge Boston G. Young and declared that his death had come as a shock to him. He spoke in the highest terms of Judge Young as a jurist and as a citizen.

When Judges Hurin and Kinder arrived both were radiant with smiles Each shook hands with practically every one in the court-room. Almost immediately thereafter Presiding Judge Hurin ascended the bench, with Judge Donnelly to his right and Judge Kinder to his left, and convened court.

The first case on the docket was passed after Attorney Charles L. Justice, representing the defendants, F. J. McCormick and others, asked that it be continued. Attorney John D. DeGolley, counsel for the plaintiff Jeremiah L. Powell, opposed a continuance and insisted that it be tried.

The circuit court judges are considering the cases presented to them here along with those they heard last week at Upper Sandusky.

The following cases were continued on the docket: Jeremiah L. Powell against F. J. McCormick and others, appeal; the United States Telephone company against the Marion County Telephone company, appeal; James O'Keefe against the State of Ohio, in error; Nelson Abel against the State of Ohio, in error; Zoa Sycks against George W. Sycks and others, appeal.

The cases of the Marion Malleable company against John Weston, in error, Jeremiah L. Powell against Blanche McClain and others, in error, Richard E. Tate against the City of Marion, in error, and Thomas Hannegan against the State of Ohio, in error, have been heard.

The suit of Alice J. Harris against the Columbus & Marion Railway company was continued and the receivers made parties defendant.

The suit of B. F. Adams against May Summers and others, appeal, was dismissed on the ground that a money judgment was asked, and that it ought to be taken up on error.

WANDERLUST LEADS BABY DONAUGH AWAY

Tot Goes on a Long, Long Journey Tuesday,

AND CAUSES DEEP ANXIETY FOR MAMA

Wanders from His Home on North Seffner Avenue Far, Far Away to the Crowded Thoroughfares Where Great Stupid Men Look at Him and Refuse To Play.

The pretty fairies who inhabit the Land of Nod did not entice Baby Donaugh from his home on north Seffner avenue, Tuesday, and carry him, spiritlike, to the public square, but in some way he got there. The street cars, automobiles, bicycles and other vehicles meant danger to a two-year-old, but Baby Donaugh didn't care. He was filled with infantile wanderlust. For half an hour he played in front of the Marion National bank building. Young men and old men stopped to talk with him.

Curious though it may seem, during the half hour Baby Donaugh played in front of the big bank on the sidewalk most women passed him with eyes looking at him expressive of maternal love, but none stopped to discuss matters with him in baby tongue. Perhaps it was because of the men standing about that they didn't. Anyhow, Baby Donaugh didn't care any more about the people than he did for the dangerous street traffic. He wore a tiny slip and his feet and his legs and his arms and head were bare. His chubby feet were dirty and his face was streaked where he had rubbed his little dimpled, soil-stained fists. His black eyes sparkled whenever any one asked him what his name was, then he ran away, not because he was afraid, but he wanted to play. Nobody recognized him.

Finally a goodly-sized crowd collected in a circle about the baby boy. The thoughtless men and boys began to ask too many questions, and they wouldn't let him romp and play like he wanted to up and down the sidewalk. He cried and called for "mama."

A woman, with a child, drove up in a buggy. "Do you know who this baby belongs to?" asked one of the men.

"Yes," the woman replied, "he is Frank Donaugh's baby. They live on Seffner avenue. Put him in here and I'll take him home."

Baby Donaugh was placed in the buggy. His adventure was over. He wanted to go home. His mother was almost frantic with joy.

All the neighbors had been searching for the child, but none of them ever dreamed that his baby wanderlust had drawn him down town, a distance of nearly a mile.

J. P. MORGAN, JR., WHO WAS TOUTED TO SUCCEED HARRIMAN IN U. P. AFFAIRS, BUT WHO FAILED TO LAND.

A RECEIVER IS NAMED FOR OHIO SANATORIUMS

Dr. C. E. Sawyer Is Appointed by Judge Babst.

TROUBLE COMES OF COLUMBUS BRANCH

The Sale of Which Had Been Contracted and Was All But Consummated When Dr. Rutter, Columbus Manager, Interposes an Objection.

A receiver for the Ohio Sanatorium company was asked in two petitions filed by Attorneys Crissinger & Guthery, in the common pleas court, Tuesday afternoon. Both petitions are practically the same in text, setting up that the company is being run at a loss and that no dividend has been paid on the common stock for five years. The title of the first petition is Carl W. Sawyer and May E. Sawyer against the Ohio Sanatorium and Henley C. Rutter and the title of the second is Carl W. Sawyer, George W. King, Charles E. Sawyer, H. B. Hane, O. S. Rapp and May E. Sawyer against the Ohio Sanatorium company and Henley C. Rutter. Rutter is a stockholder and lives in Columbus.

The Ohio Sanatorium company is capitalized at $450,000 par value, $225,000 being of the common stock and $225,000 of the preferred. It is set up that the company owns valuable property in Columbus and Marion and that the preferred stock is a lien on the company's assests, making the indebtedness $225,000. In addition to this there is a mortgage of $15,000

It is alleged that the company is insolvent and that its business is being and has been seriously interferred with by Henley C. Rutter and other stockholders. Suits have been threatened and it is claimed that, unless a receiver be appointed, things may result disastrously to common stockholders and general creditors. It is also claimed that the interference of Rutter, who holds $5,000 in common and $5,000 in preferred stock, involves the health of the patients. It is asked that a receiver be named to conduct the business, that the company be dissolved and that Rutter be restrained from interfering or molesting the receiver in any way.

The matter was presented to Judge Babst, of common pleas court, at Crestline, Tuesday evening, who, after a hearing, appointed Dr. Charles E. Sawyer receiver, and fixed his two bonds at $150,000 each. Dr. Sawyer took charge as receiver on his return from Crestline Tuesday night.

The receivership is the immediate outgrowth of the interference of Dr. Rutter with the authorized sale of the Columbus branch of the company's business, known as the Park View sanatorium. This property was acquired in 1904, when the Ohio Sanatorium company was organized. For a couple of years it did a promising business, but two years ago the resident management went to Dr. Rutter, under forced conditions requiring a change, and the business began to diminish. It had dropped from $24,000 gross business in 1906 to an estimated business of $15,000 for 1909. It was constantly losing money, more heavily each year, and draining the profits of the Sawyer sanatorium of this city to maintain an existence. Confronted by such a condition Dr Sawyer put the matter before his stockholders and it was decided to end this losing venture at Columbus. The sale of the real estate was negotiated and the matter of sale placed before a meeting of the stockholders held in this city, August 31, for that express purpose, and at this meeting it was unanimously voted to authorize the sale. Dr. Rutter was not present at the meeting, and offered no objection until this week when he threatened the prospective purchaser of the real estate with suit if they bought. This soon brought developments. Dr. Rutter was called upon, when he declared his intention to fight a sale unless he was guaranteed a continuation of his position as a house physician at $2,100 a year, and the purchase of his holdings. It was readily manifest that he was planning trouble, and Dr. Sawyer, who owns the controlling interest and has the burden of management, decided at once on a policy of cleaning house in the courts. While Dr. Rutter was threatening a receivership at Columbus, the Marion interests were getting into court to have a receiver named, and completed the job.

In the morning papers Dr. Rutter is quoted as representing that he holds stock sold to him under fraudulent representation, and that stock of fifteen per cent. value was sold at par. Dr. Sawyer flatly denies the correctness of this statement, says Dr. Rutter never bought a dollar of stock of the Ohio Sanatorium company, and the company has no relationship whatever to his stock transactions Moreover, the capital of the company was represented in its real estate, sanatorium equipment and good will, and but for the failure of the Columbus end of the company would have earned a just return on the investment. Dr. Sawyer says none of the stock was used at any time for promotion purposes.

The Columbus connection with the business, which has proven an unhappy one from almost the very start, dates back to 1904. The Sawyer sanatorium, of this city, had outgrown its capacity, and was seeking additional room for a branch for mental and nervous cases. By mere accident Dr. Sawyer related his situation to Dr. H. A. Rodebaugh, then controlling and superintending the Park View sanatorium at Columbus. The combination of the two was suggested, and looked good. The proposition grew in favor the more it was considered, and the result was the Ohio Sanatorium company, aimed to operate the two institutions. The Park View branch was to be devoted exclusively to mental and nervous patients, and the Sawyer institution in this city was to continue a general sanatorium and surgical business. The capitalization was adjusted according to the earnings of the two institutions. The expected success was not realized because the Columbus branch never earned a dollar of profit, and has grown more and more a burden until a sacrificed sale was welcomed as a solution of that unfortunate holding. It has been a source of so much annoyance and concern that the Sawyer interests and the Marion business men associated in the directory are rather glad that Dr. Rutter has precipitated a legal solution of the tangle in the courts.

The business will doubtless go along, just as though no interference had been made. The Park View branch is in process of closing, and the patients will be brought to Marion, where the C. E. Sawyer sanatorium will go right along, with its founder and manager directing with the court's authority.

MARION MASONS GO TO UPPER SANDUSKY

To Take Part in Cornerstone Laying There Tuesday

A NEW MASONIC TEMPLE IS RISING

Occupies Site of the Old Masonic Building—Handsome New Structure To Be of Brick, Trimmed with Stone—Two Stories High—On Modern Lines.

Marion Commandery, No. 36, Knights Templars, had the honorary position of escort in the exercises attending the laying of the cornerstone of the new Masonic temple, on west Johnson street, Upper Sandusky, Tuesday. Many Masons were in attendance.

The ritualistic work was conducted by the Grand Lodge officers and the ceremonies were closed with an address by D. C. Parker, of Upper Sandusky.

The city was gaily decorated, the stars and stripes being profusely mingled with the Masonic flags. The residence of every Mason in the city was bedecked with Masonic emblems.

The Marion contingent was accompanied by Baker's band, and took a conspicuous part in the parade, which was a very long one. The program at the temple was opened with a selection by Baker's band.

In the corner-stone were placed lists of the members of Warpole lodge, of McCutcheon chapter, of Upper Sandusky council and members of the building committee, a Lincoln penny, a Bible and copies of the Upper Sandusky newspapers.

The new temple will stand on the site of the old Masonic building at Upper Sandusky. When completed it will be a magnificent structure. It will be built of brick, trimmed with stone. It will be two stories high and constructed along most modern lines. The temple has a large cement lined basement. On the first floor there will be a spacious reception room, a dining-room, a kitchen, a club-room and a vestibule from which the stairs will lead. The main entrance will be at the center of the south side of the building. At the southeast corner the corner stone is located. It is of the same kind of stone as that used for the remainder of the stone work of the building and bears the following inscription: "Masonic Temple, A. D. 1909, A. L. 5909."

The second story of the new building will have a twenty-foot ceiling. Upstairs will be an ante-room and a commodious lodge room, encircled by a brass railed balcony. As new lodge furniture was recently purchased by the Masons none will have to be bought for the new building.

Well known Upper Sandusky builders have charge of the construction of the temple. It is expected that the temple will be completed and ready for occupancy by January 1. It will cost about $15,000.
